WAS HE VICTIM OF POLICE FACTIONS?

PETER DELOREY, ANNIE MULLINS

Annie Mullins is the Cambridge girl who was murdered in Arlington, March 27, 1905. Peter C. Delorey has just been paroled from Binns prison after serving fourteen years of a sentence as an accessory to the murder for which his friend, James Manter, is serving life. Delorey now aims at the freedom of Manter, declaring they were the victims of a frameup by Cambridge police. Photo shows Delorey as he looks today and the girl when she was murdered. His remarkable charges and story of the alleged miscarriage of justice begins in the Boston American today.

Prisoner, Out After 14 Years, Says He Never Even Saw Annie Mullins

Who killed Annie Mullins?

Peter Delorey, paroled after serving fourteen years as an accessory to the murder, says he never even saw the victim.

Delorey declares that he and James Manter were "framed." Manter is serving a life sentence. Delorey says they are "as innocent as babes unborn."

Officials who spent years probing the tragedy corroborate them.

Hence it appears that the slaying of Annie Mullins is today as big a mystery as it was the day her body was found in Squire's Field, Arlington, fifteen years ago.

The Boston American today publishes the first installment of Peter Delorey's remarkable story of "trumped-up confession," and the other agencies that sent him and Manter to prison "innocent lads of eighteen."

By BERT FORD.

Peter Delorey is free after fourteen years behind prison bars.

But Peter Delorey is far from satisfied.

He has one mission in life—to do his utmost to bring about the liberation of James Manter, a friendless Greek, and correct what he termed "a terrible miscarriage of justice."

BABE RUTH IN SAPPHO STUNT

The Boston American yesterday began publication of Dolores Dixon's own story of her romance with Babe Ruth—a story of hearts and diamonds that ended in a suit for $50,000 filed by Miss Dixon, who alleges Babe is the father of her unborn child. The first installment told of the meeting between Babe and Dolores—a meeting whose formality gave no promise of the whirlwind romance which Dolores says followed.

Today's installment tells how the romance blossomed, and describes how the big Bambino escaped a Sappho bit by picking Dolores up in her nightgown and carrying her from the hall of her home into her room at 4:30 in the morning.

80 HURT IN CRASH OF TROLLEYS

Cars Wrecked in Collision on Steep Grade in East Springfield

Springfield, March 20.—From 50 to 80 men, women and children were injured, many seriously, when a Ludlow trolley and a Carew avenue car smashed in a head-on collision today at the foot of a steep grade on Page boulevard, East Springfield.

It is believed a defective signal block was the cause of the smash. Both cars were wrecked.

Those most seriously injured, and removed to various hospitals, are:

Mrs. Mary E. Dowd, Fred Mollineri, James Bassilli, Victor Audette, Albert Bourcellin, Thomas Laughlin, Thomas Duffins, Miss Berda Dominick, Robert Smith, Antonio Rosetti, David Pasquinle, M. U. Buchowf, Joseph Lescoe, all of Ludlow.

Mrs. Margaret Schmidt of Springfield; Miss Julia Dzidzis of East Springfield; Marcel Smith of Springfield and Mrs. Marie Minnie of India Orchard.

Every ambulance in the city was requisitioned to take the injured to the hospitals. Of the eighty injured forty-five were treated at the first aid station of the Westinghouse plant, a mile from the scene of the accident.

Slain Model Known as a "Heavy Sugar Baby"

Dorothy Keenan, the murdered model, was a "heavy sugar baby," in Broadway lingo.

An h. s. b. is a girl with beauty and brains enough to separate wealthy men from large quantities of "sugar," that is, cash. Mysterious "Mr. Marshall of Boston" has admitted giving her $10,000 in a year.

Men, for the "heavy sugar baby" are divided into three classes, the "papa," an elderly admirer with heaps of "sugar"; the daddy, younger, but just as sugary, and the "sweetie," who has youth, abundant love, but not necessarily "sugar." "Marshall" was either "papa" or daddy," according to his age.

DORCHESTER GIRL A HEROINE

How Miss Anna Edison of Dorchester, a Red Cross nurse, aided in wiping out one of the worst breeding places for epidemic diseases in Greece is told in a report just received from Athens.

In less than a month Miss Edison and Dr. J. C. McKean, formerly of El Paso, Tex., cleaned up the town of Zante, where the dreaded typhus fever and smallpox were epidemic among thousands of refugees who had fled from the Turks.

The physician and nurse found indescribable conditions, but quickly controlled the situation through the use of a plentiful supply of disinfectant and the establishment of two temporary hospitals.

COPS BATTLE MILL WORKERS IN FACTORY

Pawtucket, R. I., March 20.—A battle in the weave room of the Royal Weaving Company today between eight policemen and six operatives ended in police victory and arrest of two workmen. The prisoners, Samuel Saba and Joseph Samara, pleaded not guilty to interference with officers and to rioting, or disturbance. They were held. Saba was off yesterday afternoon without permission. A substitute was put on. Today, the police say, Saba refused to be discharged. Manager Joseph Ott telephoned for police. When the latter came Samara and four others, the police allege, took Saba's part so fiercely that the police had to use clubs.

As a result of the affair 200 workers went on strike, the leaders say.

PLOTTERS KILLED MODEL

Slain Because She Refused to Join in Scheme to Blackmail "Marshall"

New York, March 20.—The Dorothy Keenan murder case took a sharp turn today, when the police began investigating a tip that the model had been slain after she had refused to cooperate in a plot to blackmail the mysterious "Mr. Marshall," her elderly and wealthy admirer.

A score of detectives were dispatched to check up on confidential information received by the police to the effect that despite the fact that "Mr. Marshall" was reported to have been the height of discretion in affairs of the heart, Miss Keenan had in her possession a package of letters from him.

LETTERS REVEAL PLOT.

This information came as a sensation, after yesterday it had been reported that Mr. "Marshall, reputed to be a Boston manufacturer, whose identity has not been revealed by the district attorney's office, had kept his real name from the girl.

According to the information supplied the police from a source not divulged, the letters from "Mr. Marshall" were in Miss Keenan's apartment on West 57th street the night before she was found dead in bed, with an empty chloroform bottle nearby.

Miss Keenan was said to have been approached by one of her male friends with the suggestion that the letters be put to practical use to extract more "sugar"—the Gay White Way's term for dollars—from "Mr. Marshall."

REFUSED TO AID SCHEME.

"I have never done anything like that and I would never consent to such a thing now," the model was said to have replied.

The originator of the blackmail plot then was reported to have become angry and threatened Miss Keenan.

After this scene, Miss Keenan was said to have placed in her private vault at the National City Bank, at least one letter. The police said to box would be opened.

"Marshall," back in Boston today, has acquainted his family with his predicament. His story of his associations with the murdered girl was made public by his attorney Nelson Olcott, who said:

"Although it will completely disrupt my client's social and business

TO ABOLISH PRIVATE GRAFT

Big Business Firms Petition for Law to Apply Even to House Servants

One hundred of the biggest business firms in Massachusetts, including some of the largest banking and manufacturing houses in the country, today petitioned the Legislature to pass a bill to abolish graft in private business.

Their bill is one of the most unique and sweeping ever presented to the Legislature.

Every private employe, from Rusie, the humble cook, who takes a few dollars for buying her mistress' Sunday dinner from a certain grocer, to James, the chauffeur, who grafts on auto tires, to Judkins, the trusted private secretary, or even the head of a firm who pockets thousands of dollars as his "commission" for throwing a big contract to a favored contractor, are made felons by the terms of this unusual bill.

FINE AND PRISON.

It provides a fine ranging from $10 to $500, or imprisonment for one year, or both fine and imprisonment, for any person who grafts at the expense of his employer.

The violators of the proposed law would be:

Any agent, employe or servant who corruptly requests or accepts a gift in return for acting "in any particular manner" in relation to the business of his employer or master.

Any agent, employe or servant who accepts a commission, discount or bonus for the purchase of supplies or of labor.

Any person who offers such a bonus or gift to any employe whose decision he hopes to influence.

LIST OF PETITIONERS.

Among the business houses which petition for such a law are:

Kidder, Peabody & Co., Gillette Safety Razor Company, American Soda Fountain Company, Dennison Manufacturing Company, New England Confectionery Company, Pacific Mills, George E. Keith Co., Laconia Car Company, D. C. Heath & Co., Simonds Saw & Steel Company, Carter, Rice & Co., Library Bureau, North Packing & Provision Company, Blanchard Machine Company, Wadsworth, Howland & Co., Inc., Peterson & Hollingsworth Co., Forbes Lithograph Manufacturing Company, Hood Rubber Company, Bay State Belting Company, W. H. McElwain Co., Cambridge Rubber Company and the city of Waltham.

Steamships West Lake, Talosa and Tunisian, which were near that position, have gone to the Giulia's assistance.

COAKLEY STILL ILL; CASE GOES OVER

The $100,000 suit brought by Myer Berman, former hotel proprietor, against Daniel H. Coakley, was continued for two weeks today by Justice Braley in Supreme Court at the request of Coakley's counsel, who stated his client was still ill and confined to the house. The case is one in which Berman seeks to recover $50,000, which he alleges was exacted from him under threats of criminal prosecution through a conspiracy headed by Coakley.

DELOREY DECLARES AUNT IMPLICATED HIM IN REVENGE

POLICE "TORTURE" FORCED MURDER CONFESSION

nie Mullins in Squire's Field, Arlington, March 27, 1908. Miss Mullins, a young woman of estimable character, was employed as a domestic by Professor Hans C. von Baumann, of Harvard, who lived at No. 113 Walker street, Cambridge.

BLAMES HIS AUNT.

Delorey was found guilty of manslaughter and got from fifteen to twenty years.

Peter said today that he and Manter were implicated by his aunt, Mrs. Elizabeth Delorey of Billerica, partly because she wished to avenge herself on Monter for suing her for back pay and partly because she had for years taken an uncanny interest in the Tucker case and other homicide cases.

He also charged that he and Manter were victims of a police trick in Cambridge and that he was forced to make a "triumphant confession" based on a fairy tale told by Mrs. Delorey. Peter was once in a lengthy interview alluded to her as his aunt, but always as "Mrs. Delorey."

GOT "THIRD DEGREE."

Delorey charged that he was forced in desperation "when tagged, crying, stunned and hysterical, a kid of eighteen, to agree to what they charged me with as the only way to end the torture."

"It was a silly thing to do, but imagine my position and feelings," Delorey said. "There I was confronted by police the first time and charged with being in on the murder. They brought Mrs. Delorey to repeat the absurd story she told and she and they coaxed me. Finally I made up a story and the police officials supplied facts as I went along, such as what the weather was that night, where the body was found, the dates, names of streets, and how the case ran, and so forth.

ARRESTED YEAR AFTER.

"And that was all a year and one week after the murder. I admit that I made what they called a confession, but I repudiated it afterward and felt sorry for it.

"It did a wrong to James Manter. They forced me to say he did it. They said I would go to the chair if I didn't admit it. They said they wanted him and not me.

"What I told them, or rather what they forced me to tell when scared and tired out, was all a lie. It was pure invention, as was the story told by Mrs. Delorey. Manter and I never saw that girl. We were not out together that night, nor did we come home early the morning the body was found, as Mrs. Delorey said.

SPURNED FREEDOM.

"If we had walked the way she described from Arlington to Billerica on the road all night in such heavy rain we would have been drenched, but she never said that our clothes were wet, nor did the police think of such an important detail.

"I wronged and jeopardized Manter in that statement which was wrung from me under duress, and I resolved to make amends. I made those amends by refusing to repeat that confession on the witness stand and turning down an offer of probation if I did. That meant that I have served fourteen years in State prison which I could have avoided, if I cared to repeat the lie, but I would go to the electric chair first, and I told them so.

REPUDIATED CONFESSION.

"The confession made to the police was false. I told them it was false. I told them I would not repeat it on the witness stand because it was false and I took an eighteen to twenty-year sentence rather than stand by a fabric of lies.

"James Manter is serving life now, a prisoner in the hospital for insane at Bridgewater because Mrs. Delorey told a cock-and-bull story to get back at him and because the police to spite another police faction forced me to say things which were not true.

"I have letters written by Mrs. Delorey about the Tucker and other cases. I proved by my uncle Frank, Mrs. Delorey's husband, who has been loyal and truthful, that it was the Saturday before the murder rather than the day of the crime that I loafed and did not work at Central Market in Boston.

AUNT MIXED IN DATES.

"I rode with my uncle, who was a motorman on the car running from Arlington to Scollay square. I bought a pruning knife for him on Saturday, March 24, and produced the sales slip and the following Saturday worked in the market.

"But Mrs. Delorey got the Saturdays mixed and she was mad with me and sore on Manter so the police believed her faked story instead of us and we both suffered when innocent. I don't feel malice toward anyone. I would not lift my voice to say one word about this case if it were not through a desire to help Manter and mend the wrong I did him through misdirected police influence.

URGES MANTER'S PARDON.

"That is my sole purpose in making public these facts. I am thinking of Manter. He ought to be pardoned at once. Someone ought to take an interest in his case. I shall do everything in my power. It's awful to be behind the bars year after year and know you are innocent. I felt terrible at first, but finally accepted it as fate and kept my thoughts off myself and on my mother and father and the folks at home. Those were the ones I felt sorry for. They were so patient and devoted. If by agitation I can throw light on the case of Manter and do him justice, and remove the stigma from both of our names, I will be satisfied, but not until then.

"The first one I longed to see when I was paroled on March 8 was my mother. I had walked through snow drifts to get home. I arrived four days before they expected me. Mother's hair had turned white from worry. Her embrace and kiss felt good. I was home. I had been at the Rutland camp five months and a half before being paroled. The farm life did me good. The physician at Rutland was surprised at my sound physical condition.

"In the joy of being home with the folks I couldn't get my mind off poor Manter up among the insane at Bridgewater. And I decided to tell my story for his sake alone. I had refused for days, but finally was advised to do so, to help poor Jim."

White House Lawn Feeding Ground for Robins

Washington, March 20.—White House grass grew an inch in honor of Spring and St. Patrick, according to Sergeant Dalrymple, police officer at the executive mansion.

The sergeant observed further that the lawn was covered with robins and jackdaws pulling earth worms out of the ground as a consequence of steady rains. He declared that something should be done to rid the premises of crows, which come every year and kill young squirrels and young robins in their nests.

TEMPERATURE DROPS TO 4 AT WINDSOR, VT.

Springfield, March 20.—Temperatures ranging down to 4 above zero at Windsor, Vt., and reaching an official 70 above in this city marked the arrival of the Western cold wave today.

The lowest unofficial temperature record received here was 8 above zero. The Connecticut River rose a foot in the last twenty-four hours, but the cold snap is expected to check any rising tendency.

"BABE" PLAYED SAPPHO ROLE, SAYS GIRL

golf the mornings he was with me. He used to joke a lot about it. And he called me his "little watch charm," too, because he said I was just big enough for him to hang on his watch chain.

The days he couldn't see me, he sent his chauffeur, Walter, around to see how I was. Walter is a nice looking chap, tall, very slender, with blond, curly hair.

Babe Ruth

I often used to call Babe up at the ball park to ask whether he had left tickets for the game for me at the press gate. The other players knew my name, too.

I would say, "This is Miss Dixon," and they would call him. He never seemed to make any secret of speaking to me, but would come right to the 'phone and say: "Hello, dear," and go on speaking affectionately and intimately to me. And if he hadn't been able to see me, he'd explain why.

And there was always a box in his name or my friends. Between first base and home—on the home dugout side. I never knew much about baseball before, and I grew to be a fan. I feel now as if I never wanted to see another game.

SAT NEAR MRS. RUTH.

Often my box was very near Mrs. Ruth's, and I could watch her. He never spoke to me, but would tip his cap as he went by. But we had [illegible] me said to each other.

No, I didn't feel very bad about Mrs. Ruth because there were other girls he liked before me. With one, he told me, he was "in a lot of trouble."

There was one thing that wasn't nice about him. He used such terrible language regardless of where he was. And he would always speak of his wife as "the old hen," or something like that.

RECEIVES A SHOCK.

I got one of the biggest shocks of my life one day at the ball park when I saw a baby in the box with Mrs. Ruth. He had never mentioned one word to me about having a baby.

Afterwards I asked him about the baby and he said: "Oh, yes, that's my kid." I thought it was a funny way—never to mention his baby and then to speak about it so lightly. It made me feel bad at the time. And I thought how lucky Mrs. Ruth was having a baby of his.

Instead of wearying, I grew more and more in love with him. And the whole day for me was just his call or his voice on the phone, or seeing him at the game. When he was away I sent him letters because otherwise the days were quite empty. He didn't answer my letters—but I didn't expect him to. Sometimes I sent him telegrams or spoke to him on the wire.

PLANS FOR TRIP.

I felt so bad about letting him go away the early part of September that he said he might be able to fix it to take me out for the day with him to Freeport—pretending he was going fishing—and we could have a whole day together. He couldn't promise because he wasn't at all sure he could make it.

Isn't it funny how things work out in this world? That day—which has caused me so much misery since? Well I prayed for it—prayed that he'd be able to manage to take me with him to Freeport so that we could have a whole day together—our last day for many weeks.

But I didn't really think he could manage it. So at 4.30 in the morning, when the bell rang, I was still peacefully asleep in bed. I tumbled out and rushed to the door—just as I was—in my night gown.

My sweetheart in a sport suit, with a cap, picked me up in his arms and carried me inside.

CONGRESSMEN JUGGED; BROKE SHORE LEAVE

Aboard U. S. S. Henderson, Bulkeley, March 20 (Radio to Associated Press)—Two members of Secretary Denby's congressional party, seeking first hand information about sailors' life, wound up in the hands of a naval patrol last night.

Assigned to the battleship New York for yesterday's maneuvers, Representative Albert B. Rossdale and Andrew N. Peterson, both of New York, drew sailors' uniforms, had dinner with the crew, washed up their mess kits, obtained regulation passes and started out on shore leave.

At the first cabaret they entered a sailor patrol interrupted a dance and held the two for being ashore after 11 o'clock in violation of regulations. Wireless explanations from the battleship New York were necessary to effect a release.

WIFE, 2 CHILDREN AND $3,600 GONE

"You'd better draw your money out of the bank, Raymond."

"What for, Marcella?"

"Banks are uncertain. I would feel more sure about the money if we have it right in the house."

That's the way, according to Raymond Kissell of No. 12 Harding street, Somerville, his wife argued until he drew his $3,600 savings from the bank and brought the money home. He says he and his wife hid the money in a place known only to them.

But Raymond came home the day after New Year's Day, he now says, and discovered that his wife, their two children and the $3,600 all were missing. He told Somerville Court that he found his wife had gone to live with her cousin in Chicago.

After waiting several weeks for her to return he now asks Somerville Court for a warrant for her arrest.

FRANC'S ARE going up. Exchange speculators believe that France will get some real money out of Germany. Canadian money is going down. Their dollar, recently worth more than ours, dropped yesterday to 97.50 cents. What is the matter with our northern neighbor?

WHAT IS the wealth of the United States? Some statisticians put our annual income at fifty billions, which would make our wealth one thousand billions, on a 5 per cent. basis.

But life insurance policies carried in New York State alone amount to forty-one thousand millions. If a few lives in ONE State are worth that, how much are all the Americans, and all their national wealth, worth?

WHEN THERE is trouble in the heating of your apartment, you visit the janitor. Sometimes you get relief.

But the janitor in charge of our earth's heat is the sun, more than ninety million miles away, in a straight line—or curved, if "relativity" prefers it. You cannot argue with the sun.

THE WESTERN part of our country, which means the middle part, between cold New York and balmy California, is enduring the worst storms in twenty-five years. Great depths of snow, many dead in the storms, with Spring at the door.

There is no question as to the sun's responsibility. But what happens up there, where the dreadful flames leap 100,000 miles above the sun's surface, and where vast "spots" might cut off half our earth's supply of heat?

EARL CARNARVON, full name George Edward Stanhope Molyneaux Herbert, fifth Earl of Carnarvon, has been stung or bitten by some one of Egypt's many venomous insects, and is dangerously ill of blood poisoning.

This reminds you that things have changed since King "Tut," as the headline writers call him, went hunting. Then lions, tigers, savages were the enemies. Now the enemies are creatures, invisible under the microscope.

THE NEWS says that Carnarvon has spent $100,000 in digging out King Tut-Ankh-Amen. An advertising man has figured that the preferred position, front page advertising, he has got out of his investment, in America alone, could not have been bought for $100,000,000. An American, Carter, did the real work that got the results.

THE GLORIOUS city of New York is deeply interested in the tragic death of Miss Dorothy Keenan, or King, a young lady euphemistically described as a cloak model. Some one chloroformed her and took her jewelry.

The unfortunate young woman had spent $700 of her bitterly hard earned money to buy a fur coat for some one of the men that hung about her.

OTHER MEN that knew her and supplied money to buy that coat and other things, are cloaked in discreet mystery. False names are provided to shield them. They also are "cloak" models in their way.

All facts concerning the young woman are cheerfully supplied, all possible details about her, her mother and father, anything you want to know.

BUT when it comes to the men that kicked her down the various flights of social stairs, that's another matter. THEY must be protected. You could not properly "drag in their respectable names."

Have we a double standard? We have.

THE YOUTH of Russia is rabidly atheistic. It holds mock services in church to prove its contempt for religion. The government, encouraged by popular feeling, is closing churches.

LOU TELLEGEN 'SHEIK OF THE VESTIBULES'

LORNA AMBLER

Actress whom detectives testified he saw Tellegen hugging and kissing in apartment house vestibule until 2:30 a. m. on various occasions.

New York, March 20.—Closing testimony in the hearing of Geraldine Farrar's divorce suit cast Lou Tellegen, matinee idol, in the new role of "Sheik of the Park Benches and Darkened Vestibules."

At one time during the testimony of Detective Norman J. Fitzsimmons chief of the opera singer's sleuths, newspapermen were barred from the rooms of Referee Thomas H. Mahoney.

Fitzsimmons had told how, for two hours Tellegen and "Miss S. L.," whose real identity has been carefully guarded, sat hugging and kissing on a bench in Riverside Drive Park. His narration, at the time the reporters were barred from the room, had reached the point of a lingering aut kiss.

SISTER OF ACTRESS.

The mysterious "Miss S. L" was later revealed as Stella Larrimore, petite and vivacious sister of Francine Larrimore, actress. Stella had appeared with Tellegen in "Don Juan."

Her identification was the unexpected turn at the closing hearing. The expected event was the naming of Lorna Ambler, Australian actress, as one of the correspondents. She had appeared with Tellegen in "Blind Youth." Miss Ambler was declared to be the "half sister" with whom Tellegen spent part of the Summer of 1921 in a bungalow at Long Beach, L. I.

CASE UNCONTESTED.

The next hearing in the case will be next Friday, at which time Arthur E. Schwartz, attorney for Tellegen, will be formally asked if there is anything to be presented on behalf of the defence.

Tellegen so far has made no show of resisting the evidence. His attorney was present at Monday's session for a brief time, but left before witnesses for Miss Farrar related their stories.

In addition to naming Lorna Ambler and "Miss S. L.," Miss Farrar named "a Clifford woman from California."

It was ascertained today that Miss Kathleen Clifford, a vaudeville actress, had been named in a deposition taken last year in San Francisco, and introduced into evidence last January at several hearings before Referee Mahoney.

The high spot of the day's testimony was that of Detective Fitzsimmons acclaiming Tellegen as the unchallenged hallway osculator and pork bench Romeo.

The story told by Fitzsimmons was, in substance, as follows:

"I first saw Miss Lorna Ambler on the night of September 5, 1921. Miss Ambler was about twenty-five, with black hair and flashing black eyes. She was very attractive and refined.

"Before meeting Miss Ambler, Tellegen jumped into a taxi at the Garrick Theatre with 'Miss L.' and rode with her to her home at No. 730 Riverside Drive. He kissed and embraced her in the vestibule, then jumped into another taxi and rode to No. 42 West 37th street, where Miss Ambler resided with a family named Norman.

"Tellegen rang a bell, although it was after midnight. Miss Ambler soon joined him in the hallway and hugged and kissed him for more than an hour. He then left her, jumped into a taxi and went straight to the Ritz Carlton Hotel where he has a suite of rooms.

"I again observed Tellegen on September 10, 1921. This time with 'Miss L.' About midnight they strolled to moonlit Riverside Drive, sat on a bench and put their arms about each other and kissed."

HUGGED ON PARK BENCH.

At this point newspapermen were excluded. When they were readmitted Fitzsimmons resumed:

"Tellegen again met Miss Ambler on September 12, in the vestibule. After considerable kissing they took a walk. Returning to the vestibule, they resumed their kissing and kept it up until 3 o'clock in the morning.

"On September 13, Tellegen and 'Miss L.' drove to No. 730 Riverside Drive. They hugged and kissed for a short time in the vestibule. Tellegen left hurriedly and drove straight to No. 42 West 37th street, where he met Miss Ambler and spent an hour hugging and kissing her in the darkened vestibule.

KISSED UNTIL 7:30 A. M.

"On September 17, for the first time, Tellegen and 'Miss L.' entered a private car instead of a taxi after leaving the Garrick Theatre. The license number was 28 234 touring car, owned by Miss Francine Larrimore, bore this number in 1921). They drove to No. 730 Riverside Drive and indulged in hugs and kisses in the lobby until 2:30 a. m.

"Joseph Brandi, a negro elevator operator of the apartment house at No. 730 Riverside Drive, testified that Tellegen spent one Saturday night in 'Miss S. L.'s' apartment. He came out about 8 o'clock Sunday morning.

ONLY 4 ATTEND WOMEN'S POLL TAX HEARING

Lack of interest over a bill which would levy a tax of two and one-half million dollars annually on the women of this State caused a hearing held today to be listed as "the shortest on record at the State House."

It was exactly fifteen seconds after the hearing was formally declared "open" that Senator Walter P. Cresse of Beverly, chairman of the special committee on municipal taxation and expenditures, announced it "closed."

Two women, two men, the seven members of the commission and nine newspapermen were present.

The bill will now be taken under advisement by the committee.

The bill provides for a poll tax of $2 on all adult women in the State. According to the 1920 census these women number 1,233,237. It is not believed this figure has been changed materially in the past three years.

RUSH GUNS IS PLEA OF LYNCH

Free State Officials Reveal Alleged Plot of Irish Republicans in U. S.

Dublin, March 20.—(By the Associated Press)—A letter purported to have been written by Liam Lynch, epublican army leader, to Joseph McGarrity of Philadelphia, urging the vital importance of "a consignment of arms arriving as soon as possible" was made public today by the Free State government.

"One piece of small artillery in a few weeks would be worth twenty pieces a year for a couple of months," Lynch was said to have written.

"Time is on the side of the enemy. We want to make the most of the coming few months. If it is at all possible to have such here at once, nothing should prevent it.

"We could turn the scale here immediately and also end the war quickly if this arrived."

MUST STAY SINGLE TO OBTAIN IT

Friends Indignant at Small Amount Awarded Her; Secrecy Veils Case

International News Service.

Nice, March 20.—Mrs. George Jay Gould, Jr., who recently obtained a divorce from her husband in Nice, was granted $800 alimony monthly, so long as she remains single, it was learned today.

It was really Mrs. Gould who brought the action instead of her husband. The conventional presumption was made that Mr. Gould had suffered grave injuries, but the details were not given.

Under the lenient rules of the French divorce courts, and especially the courts of Nice, it is possible to cover all charges by the phrase "injure grave" and at the same time cover up the case with secrecy. In fact, it is forbidden to make revelations concerning divorce actions.

The Gould case lasted just fifteen minutes. Neither Mr. nor Mrs. Gould was present. The allegations were not mentioned.

Friends of Mrs. Gould are reported indignant at the small amount of alimony she obtained. They declared it is not enough for her to support and educate her two sons.

There are indications that Nice is to become the divorce mecca of rich Americans because of the ease and secrecy with which cases are handled here.

FEDERAL COURT TO TRY CASE OF BOGAN

Edward Bogan, prohibition agent accused of killing an alleged bootlegger, who was indicted in Suffolk County, will be tried in a Federal Court, it was stated today, and the case will come up before the Federal Grand Jury. This was decided after a conference between District Attorney O'Brien and Judge Morton.

The new Federal Grand Jury went into session following a charge by Judge Morton. Former Mayor William A. Bradford of Quincy is foreman of the jury, which comprises the following:

Edward Goodrich Boston, machine operator; Edwin Gray, West Dennis, Austin C. Ice, Boston, accountant; William A. Littlefield, Malden, mechanic; Daniel McGonagle, Everett, superintendent; Hugo Mosser, Lawrence, upholsterer; Henry C. Neff, Adams, engineer.

Elmer Purinton, Stockbridge, landlord; Ernest F. Schultze, Washington, farmer; Leonard N. Smith, South Hadley, supervisor; Donald N. baxter, Boston, manager, and Matthew T. Wallace, Boston, grocer.

There are before the Grand Jury about 150 liquor cases, a dozen drug cases, and several fraudulent bankruptcies.

IMPORTANT LABOR POST FOR HUB MAN

Charles J. Mahoney of Boston, legislative agent of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, was today appointed a member of the important compact board which will adjust wages, working conditions, the application of seniority and other important labor matters on all the railroads of the United States and Canada. The board consists of six trainmen and six conductors, chosen from all the employes both in this country and Canada. They will meet in Cleveland next week, where they will agree on the complete program of labor adjustment, affecting several hundred thousand employes, to be taken up with the railroad executives.

GIRL AND TWO MEN HELD IN ROBBERY

Charged with highway robbery, Mrs. Maine Martyn, twenty-five years old, of Tenney court, East Somerville; Dominic C. "Red" Noonan, twenty-four, of Cedar street, Charlestown, and John E. "Sandy" Morrison, twenty-seven, of City Square Hotel, Charlestown, were each held in $10,000 bail in Somerville court today.

All three pleaded not guilty and were held for a hearing March 26. The girl, alleged by the police to have been a decoy for the men in a plot whereby Nick Butler, a Maine lumberjack, was beaten and robbed of $365, first told the police her name was Miss May Martin.

It appears in the Somerville directory in that form, but before being arraigned she insisted that her right name is "Mrs. Maine Martyn."

Seven o'clock found Nick strolling along Chelsea street, Charlestown, Nick dropped into "Joe's place" and immediately was charmed with the appearance of the waitress who took his order. The waitress was Mrs. Martyn.

One thing led to another and Mrs. Martyn told him she had to work until midnight, but she would meet him then. Nick finished his meal, left a good tip for her and went out, vastly pleased with himself. He was back at midnight and he and the waitress rolled away in a taxi. It was Nick's first taxi ride.

They were driven to a house in Mystic avenue, East Somerville. There, the police say, Mrs. Martyn told Nick they would have to wait on the stens until her brother came to let them in.

Suddenly two men appeared from somewhere. They fell on Nick unmercifully. A couple of hours later Patrolman Harry W. Ashe found Nick so dazed on Mystic avenue that he couldn't talk.

At "Joe's" they picked up the trail of Mrs. Martyn and found her at her home. Sharn questioning led to the arrests a little later of "Red" Noonan and "Sandy" Morrison.

WIFE FAILS TO FIGHT HAWTHORNE DIVORCE

Mrs. Agnes C. Hawthorne failed to contest the divorce suit filed by her husband, Bertrand, wealthy shoe man of Lynnfield, in the six divorce court. Judge White, after hearing the evidence submitted by the latter, took the case under advisement. Mrs. Hawthorne was accused with Fred D. Dearborn, a milk dealer of Middleton, in the Hotel Seymour, Lynn. Both were fined $100 in Lynn District Court.

EVAN FONTAINE AND MOTHER OUT ON BAIL

New York, March 20.—Evan Burrowes Fontaine and her mother, Mrs. Florence Fontaine, were back in New York today following their release in $5,000 bail each on charges of perjury arising from the latter's suit against Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney. They were arraigned in the Rockland County Court at New City, Judge Wiggins conducting proceedings. Both women pleaded not guilty. The date for further hearing was set for April 9, and the accused were given the privilege of changing their pleas before that date.

SECRET SERVICE SPY TELLS OF 'RED' MEETING

By Associated Press

St. Joseph, Mich., March 20.—A full story of the alleged Communist Party Convention near here last August, from the first of the meeting call until the raid on it directed by Berrien County officials, as told by a Department of Justice agent, was given today at the trial of William Z. Foster of Chicago for criminal syndicalism.

The government agent, arrested in the raid only to later disappear "mysteriously," told the story, identifying himself as K-97 in government secret service files; as Ashworth to the alleged Communists and as Day to the delegates at the convention. He is Francis Morrow of Camden, N. J.

After identifying documents seized by the officials, Morrow told of his activities with the Communists, actions that brought him into the favor of the organization and caused him to be selected as a delegate to the convention.

This testimony brought out the painstaking efforts to keep the meeting place secret. Only a chosen few were told the convention site in the duress.

14 HURT AS ELEVATOR DROPS IN PITTSBURGH

Pittsburgh, March 20 (By International News Service).—Fourteen persons, eight girls and six men, were injured, some seriously, when an elevator in the building of Murdock, Kerr & Co. dropped from the third floor today. The injured were rushed to hospitals. Police reports said most of the victims were suffering severely from shock. A few were believed to have received internal injuries.

STATE PRISON BREAK FOILED BY WARDEN

An attempt to escape from State Prison at Charlestown by Charles R. Ward, colored, and Frank J. Tracy, regarded as the most desperate inmates of the institution, was frustrated by prison officials.

A third prisoner, Edward Yeomans of Cambridge, serving a sentence of seven to nine years for assault with intent to kill, was also involved in the attempted escape, according to Warden William Hendry.

Ward, who is serving a sentence of from thirty-eight to forty-three years for assaulting women, escaped with Herman Barney and Charles R. Manister in May of 1920. A year ago he obtained a ladder and other equipment in preparation for an attempted escape.

Tracy was sentenced to life imprisonment after having been convicted with Joseph D. Rogers of the murder of Samuel H. Cohen, a junkman, in the South End, in 1915.

The three prisoners were employed in the shoe shop at the prison, where the suspicions of the officer in charge were attracted to them a short time ago. He reported to Warden Hendry who placed a watch on the men.

Yesterday afternoon, believing the time ripe, Warden Hendry and Deputy Warden Hogsett made an examination of the shoe shops. Under Ward's bench they found a steel jack and a coil of rope. Beneath the bench used by Tracy was discovered another coil of rope and a dummy pistol crudely carved from a stick of wood.

More rope was lying under Yeomans' bench, while two of the bars in his cell were discovered to have been sawed through.

The three prisoners were immediately locked up in solitary confinement and an investigation started in an attempt to learn how far their plans had progressed.

LAWRENCE HEARS OF WAGE RISE

Lawrence, March 20.—Mill operatives today discussed a statement by Thomas Gorman, United Textile workers agent here, that mills in this city had already granted wage increases to skilled workers. While Gorman refused his announcement adding that he had positive information that loom-fixers had been raised from $37.50 to $42 a week, mill agents denied that any class advances had been granted.

The Shawsheen Mills of the American Woolen Company in Andover were said to have advanced the rates of loom-fixers because they were short of this class of workers.

SAYS PHELAN STATEMENT MISLEADS

The statement of Fuel Administrator James J. Phelan, urging local administrators to seek a downward revision of prices and giving permission to withdraw emergency restrictions wherever possible, is misleading, in the opinion of Mrs. Caroline Crooker of No. 49 Myrtle street, Melrose, wife of Attorney Conrad Crooker.

"It is a shame when a man like Mr. Phelan tries to convince the people that there is plenty of coal when I am refused by my own dealer in Melrose," she said.

"Mr. Phelan is inter-presenting the facts. He should be called. Coal dealer does not even answer the telephone. I went to see him Monday. He didn't have any coal and did not know when he would have any. He didn't have any wood. It is also a wood dealer.

"I was compelled to buy coal in Everett at $15 a ton and then pay $5 additional to have it hauled to my home.

"Mr. Phelan ought to look into the situation. His statement was also misrepresentation of facts."

HOLD AUTOIST WHO CRUSHED TWO WOMEN

Fall River, March 20.—Abraham D. Sudaski, driver of the auto that killed one woman and probably fatally injured another, was arraigned today, charged with manslaughter. He pleaded not guilty and was held in $2,500 for hearing on April 3.

Sudaski's car struck Rosa Katlabski and Bridget Knecio of Summit street, as they were crossing East Main street, during a high wind. The police believe that the women lost their bearings and walked in front of the machine. The Katlabski woman died soon after reaching City Hospital. She was mangled fearfully. The Knecio woman's recovery is doubtful.

nam's Hotel, but said he merely 'did so to get off the street for the night. He said that they talked while there.

South declared he knew nothing whatever of the girl taking poison or how she got it.

Investigation today of the tangled affairs of young Sylvia's life showed that Sunday evening she was in the apartment at No. 56 Westland avenue, which South shares with three other young men who are students at Tufts Dental College.

South is a World War veteran and now a vocational student of electrical engineering.

Sylvia was very depressed Sunday evening, according to South's roommates. There were three reasons:

PUZZLED ABOUT FATHER.

She had quarreled with her sweetheart.

She had had another bitter argument with her mother.

She had again been unable, she told the dental students, to learn what she wished about her father. Her mother told her, she said, that her father was dead. But the girl told the students that she believed her father was living. She wished to get in contact with him.

A box of chocolates, poison coated, were found by the side of the bed in Room 4, Putnam's Hotel, No 244 Huntington avenue, Back Bay, where the disillusioned girl was found writhing in agony.

Did she eat the death candy voluntarily or was it crammed down her throat?

The police of the Back Bay station admit they are undecided. And this in the face of the girl's story—the old, old tale of a blighted love.

Sylvia Henderson is the daughter of Mrs. Mary B. Henderson, employed as a cook by Hugh Nawn, the contractor, at his home, No. 70 Brookledge street, Elm Hill section, Roxbury.

She was employed as a nurse-maid by Robert Baldwin of No. 36 Mount Vernon street, Cambridge, and was held in high esteem by the Baldwin family.

Some time during the late Fall or Winter a man came into her life. Everything was changed for Sylvia then.

Mrs. Henderson protested. Her words fell on deaf ears. Some time late Sunday night mother and daughter quarrelled. The girl, high strung and defiant, left to join her sweetheart. They, too, quarrelled.

The police say "her man" insisted on making the mission at St. Patrick's church, Roxbury. She demanded that he go with her. He refused. Then she went to South's apartment, suite 5. Later she left with him.

The two went to Putnam's Hotel. Hours later a woman resident of the hotel heard groans. A clerk gained entrance by means of a pass key. He found the girl on the bed partly clothed.

Dr. Walter R. Mansfield of No. 8 Cumberland street was called, and immediately ordered her removal to the hospital. The police were then notified, and took charge of the corrosive sublimate solution and the green hued chocolates.

When the ambulance interne entered the room, Miss Henderson gasped: "I'm glad to see you," and then lapsed into a coma.

ADMITS TAKING POISON.

She recovered consciousness at the hospital, and stated she had taken the poison. She then gave the telephone number of Hugh Nawn, her mother's employer.

Night Clerk Rounds at Putnam's Hotel refused to allow the register so that the handwriting might be noted. He further refused to call Miss Thomas Edwards, who was asleep on the floor above, and who had rented the room. When asked how a 16-year-old girl had been permitted to enter the hotel as a married woman, he said ages were very deceiving.

HID IDENTITY FROM GIRL.

"Marshall" admits that he has been "very much of an ass," and says his companionship with Dorothy King was "merely in search of recreation."

This is the mysterious "Mr. Marshall's" story, as related in detail to Olcott.

The dashes and blanks may be filled out should "Marshall" decide to reveal his identity. The story:

"My name is ——— Massachusetts. I am married and have a family. My business is ——. I have a branch office in New York. One of my employes is ——— (the man known as 'Wilson'). He also is married.

"Fourteen months ago I was introduced in a restaurant by a girl friend to Dorothy King. She gave me her address and phone number, No. 144 West Fifty-seventh street, Circle 2510, and asked me to call.

MARSHALL LIKED GIRL.

"I did so. I liked the girl and became a fairly steady caller. I visited her perhaps on an average once a month, sometimes more or less frequently. She spoke often about wishing to obtain a good position. I knew nothing about her life.

"Miss King had no idea of my real identity. I never told her. She never asked me.

"I do not believe my identity is known to any of Miss King's family or friends.

"I never wrote out a check or sent her a telegraphic money order or gave her an order upon a jeweler. Nor did she ever know where to reach me. My gifts to her were always made in person, or on two occasions that I recall, through 'Wilson.' I have given her a total of about $10,000 in cash and considerable jewelry.

KEPT IDENTITY SECRET.

"I was cautious about my identity merely because of my business and social connections.

"I came to New York on March 14 from Massachusetts and went to Miss King's apartment for luncheon. We had our usual chat about various things. She insisted that I take her out to dinner that night. I had done this only once or twice, and I told her I preferred to dine with her in the apartment.

"She insisted, however, and so, in the early evening, I returned. I thought it best to be accompanied by 'Wilson,' because we were going to a public place and I did not wish to be seen alone with a young woman. We drank some champagne and then, at 8:30 o'clock went out to dine.

"The story of the negro elevator operator that I have seen in the newspapers is correct on this point. We returned about 11:30. 'Wilson' left in a few minutes. I remained as I have said, until about 1:55 a. m.

REFUSED TO STAY.

"Miss King asked me to remain longer. I told her that she knew I never remained away from my hotel so long and I was not going to break my rule.

"I went in the street. It was o'clock in the morning. I had to search several minutes for a taxicab. It bore me to my hotel.

"It was not until I read in newspapers Friday that Albert E. Gutvares, whom I had never heard of, was under arrest that I determined to consult counsel."

Maine Grandmother, But 32 Years Old, Married at 13

Portland, Me., March 20.—The injunction in the once popular song to "catch 'em young" is endorsed by Mrs. Elmer A. Dyer, "Maine's youngest grandmother." brating the deposing of all the gods." So runs the story.

INTERESTING, AND old. It has happened often. But Russia in time will come back to wise old Voltaire's saying: "If there had been no God, it would have been necessary to invent one."

Men NEED religion. They need a god. They get tired inventing their own theories and trying to believe them. Rest is what they want. Religion and faith give it to them.

SOME PREDICT that a new religion, of great strength, far spreading, will soon appear. It is possible. When the world is torn up, and morals are trampled down, some new religious force is apt to arise and meet the situation.

WHEN PAGANISM went to pieces, Christianity came to satisfy men's minds. What would the new religion be, what would it teach, and especially what would it promise? Men are worried and want promises, to comfort them.

"Stay me with promises, comfort me with faith, for I am sick of doubt," might express men's feelings.

SENATOR BORAH demands a Supreme Court of the world, to settle world affairs. An army and navy would not be needed, he thinks, to enforce its decisions.

The answer to that is THIS:

You could not find in all Europe judges for that court free from hatred or contempt for the United States.

WOULD SENATOR BORAH submit his own case to a court prejudiced against him? He would not, if he could help it. And this country, which CAN help it, will not appear as supplicant before a court representing Europe's belief that America in some way ought to pay Europe's bills.

The Health Doctor

A Tribute to Mothers

MOTHERS are health doctors. Their responsibility is to guard family health. It is mothers who are making the world clean. For centuries mothers have feared, hated and fought dirt.

The marvelous advances in sanitation which are slowly, surely conquering disease are but the organized expression of woman's worship of cleanliness. To her influence must be credited clean schools, clean streets, clean neighborhoods.

Who can explain the mystery of a mother's protective instinct which ever guards the lives of those she loves? Is it that—

"—once, with eyes tear-stained, yet looking upward,
With smiling lips she passed beneath the rod,
Descending almost to the vale of shadows
To bring a little new-born soul from God."

Every mother knows that dirt is dangerous. She knows that dirt caused the fever which wasted the wonderful little body that was once part of herself—that burned up vitality which probably never can be wholly replaced.

Dirt caused that skin infection which poisoned the body and may result in permanent ill health.

Is it any wonder mothers insist on keeping their homes clean—that they make their children bathe and clean up after play and before eating—that they plead with their husbands to remove dangerous street dust before romping with the babies?

And isn't it natural that mothers should have an abiding respect for good soap?

Lifebuoy is now probably the most widely used toilet soap in the world because mothers know that it provides a dependable protection to health. Lifebuoy is more than soap—it is a health habit.

Its rich, creamy, healing lather of palm-fruit oil and cocoanut oil is permeated with a wonderful health ingredient which wards off the invisible dangers ever present in dirt. This protection penetrates deep down into every pore, cleansing and purifying—awakening the skin to radiant health.

It clears the complexion, removing the cause of tiny infections so marring to beauty. It keeps baby's skin soft, rosy and free from rashes. It safely removes germ-laden dirt and grime from hands, face, knees and feet of your youngsters, preventing infection of scratches and bruises, and combating the contagions which are spread by dirt.

Men will tell you how much they like Lifebuoy, and explain how the health ingredient purifies and deodorizes the skin.

For the health of your family place a cake of Lifebuoy at every place where there is running water. Today!

Alkali in Shampoos Bad For Washing Hair

USE MULSIFIED

Many soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much free alkali, which is very injurious, as it dries the scalp and makes the hair brittle.

The best thing to use is Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo, for this is pure and entirely greaseless. It is very cheap and beats anything else all in pieces. You can get Mulsified at any drug store, and a few ounces will last the whole family for months.

Two or three teaspoonfuls of Mulsified in a cup or glass with a little warm water is all that is required. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub the Mulsified cocoanut oil in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, cleanses thoroughly, rinses out easily. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and is soft, fresh looking, bright, fluffy, wavy and easy to manage. Besides, it loosens and takes out every particle of dust, dirt and dandruff. Be sure your druggist gives you mulsified.

Removes Hairy Growths Without Pain or Bother Use Delatone

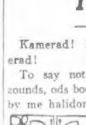
(Modes of Today)

It is not necessary to use a painful process to remove hairy growths, for with a little delatone handy you can keep the skin entirely free from these beauty destroyers. To remove hair, make a stiff paste with a little powdered delatone and water. Spread this on the hairy surface and in about 2 minutes rub off, wash the skin and the hairs are gone. To guard against disappointment, be careful to get real delatone. Mix fresh as wanted.

Liars Hitting on All Six, Truth Massacred by Contestants

Kamerad! Kamerad! Kamerad!

To say nothing of Eureka, zounds, ods bodkins, a'death and by me halidom.



It was bad enough when Boston Liars sent their communications in by mail. True, that got us in bad with the letter carriers, who claim they have been made beasts of burden ever since this impossible contest started. They didn't stop to realize that the thousands of letters they were bringing from liars meant so much more postage bought, and thus meant increased income for the postoffice with consequent chances for them getting the raise they deserve.

But a lot of Liars began yesterday the fearful habit of bringing their fibs in person. If this issue of the American looks a little goofy, it is because of the thousands of liars who stormed the building yesterday with their precious contributions. It is hard to get out a paper when the building is full of liars. One citizen was restrained by force from sending in a riot call. It looked like a reunion of the Fascisti, the Soviet and the Sinn Fein.

We beg of you, good liars of New England, send 'em in by mail, like these here liars did.

From Miss Alice Shannon, No. 20 Charlesgate West, Boston:

"The mosquitoes in the Fenway last Summer were particularly bad. Us tenants got together and sprinkled the whole place with tear gas. The bloomin' mosqs almost wept themselves out of existence, but in the long run they survived, and the only effect the tear gas had on 'em was to make 'em near-sighted. What do you suppose the intelligent little critters did then? They trained a lot of fireflies to light the way for them and show them where to bite. If you don't believe me I'll come down and show you where they bit me."

Come down, Sweet Alice, and we'll hand you a couple of passes to see Lightnin', the show over at the Hollis street theatre. We envy the mosquitoes that bit you.

YOU WIN, CHARLES.

"The one thing that sticks out in my mind is when I took part in a boat race in the northern part of the State. They thought because I was eighty years old that I couldn't row, but I rowed in fact that the friction set the boat on fire and I had to swim ashore. I didn't mind losing the race, but the boat was insured and I swore off rowing from that time on."

But you didn't swear off lying. Friend Charles O. Foss of the Falmouth Hotel, Portland, Me. If you want to travel all the way from Portland to see "Lightnin'" there's a couple of tickets waiting for you, and we want to say the trip will be worth while, because we saw "Lightnin'" and it's the best show we ever saw. If you can keep a secret—sh-h-h, Frank Bacon and Winchell Smith were supposed to have written "Lightnin'" but we did the job. We asked John Golden to keep our name out of it. We hate publicity, see?

Next:

"Cheer up, boys, there's better times coming. I got a permit today from the city authorities to open up a million dollar saloon with a solid gold rail, in the spot where the Old Howard now stands. The proposition is backed by a Boston banker who wishes to keep his name out of it for obvious reasons."

TWO FOR LEROY.

This good news comes from Leroy M. Danforth of Evelyn street, Brookline, and will be welcomed particularly by Lightnin' Bill himself, who likes his wee droppie as well, or better, than you or I. Two drinks to you, Leroy, if you come down from the farm to call for them.

Speaking of fogs (as J. Fink, of Charlestown is) here's Mr. Fink's fog:

"It was near the equator and the fog was so thick that the crew had to shovel it off the decks before the ship could go on."

Some shovel. Some fog. Some tickets for Fink. Go on.

George F. Lowther, of No. 9 Martin street, Medford Hillside, swears that Harry Frazee has broadcasted the following:

"Well, Baseball Fans, another season is before us, and as usual our Red Sox will win the pennant and the World's Series. As has been my custom, I have spent a huge sum this year for new players and I will spare no pain, no expense to build up the greatest ball team in the history of baseball."

That's enough for today. We have to feed these gradually. The public is not prepared to read more than four or five a day. Gradually we will loosen up. In the meantime, recall that in addition to getting a couple of tickets to the play at the Hollis Theatre, each contributor to this silly feature has a chance to win one of the three gold pieces which are to be awarded for the best lies at the termination of the contest.

Lie early and often. No rules. Address your abominations of the truth to the Liars' Contest Editor, Boston American, No. 80 Summer street, Boston, Mass.

P. S.—We have a hunch that we will make a very interesting announcement in reference to this contest during the week. Better read it carefully each day.

Crowds of Liars, impatient of the mails, stormed the office of the Liars' Contest Editor yesterday to bring down in person their contributions to a contest that Mark Twain would have loved to enter. The above picture will give you only the most phermeral notion of the size of the Fibbing Mob that brought contributions. The fourth from the end in the third row is Lightnin' Bill Jones, who tried for seven hours to horn his way through to read some of the mail. He almost missed a matinee doing it.

WIFE SLAVED FOR KRESGE FORTUNE

Detroit, March 20.—When Mrs. Anna Harvey Kresge's suit for divorce against Sebastian S. Kresge is carried to a decision in court, the romance of love and business began twenty-seven years ago when, as a girl of eighteen, Anna Harvey came to Memphis, Tenn., to work in the first store owned by Kresge will be.

She was diligent and wanted to make a name for herself and get ahead in the business world. She studied at night and learned accounting and business administration, and shortly after she began as clerk in the store, she was made cashier and took charge of all money spent and earned by the Kresge Company.

Kresge, then twenty-four years old, worked night and day for the success of his enterprise, an eighty-hour day being his usual rou-tine.

Even after her marriage, when the Memphis business was growing, Mrs. Kresge served as cashier. Then when stores in other cities were opened, the family moved to Detroit.

At the Kresge administration office today it was announced that as far as the Detroit store magnate had no comment to make on his wife's action, but friends of the Kresge family came to believe that the breach between the couple will be permanent.

30 HOMES LOST AS FIRE HITS KEY WEST

HE DARKENED HIS GRAY HAIR

Tells How He Did It With Barbo Compound

Mr. J. A. McCrea, a well-known resident of California, who was called Daddy gave a Grandpa on account of his white hair, and who succeeded it with a home-made mixture, recently made the following statement:

"Anyone can prepare a simple mixture at home that will darken gray hair, and make it soft and glossy. To a half-pint of water add 1 ounce of bay rum, a small box of Barbo Compound and ¼ ounce of glycerine.

These ingredients can be bought at any drug store at very little cost. Apply to the hair twice a week until the desired shade is obtained. It does not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy and does not rub off."

"TIZ" FOR ACHING, SORE, TIRED FEET

Just take your shoes off and then put those weary, shoe-crinkled, aching, burning, corn-pestered, bunion-tortured feet of yours in a "TIZ" bath. Your sore, tired feet will wriggle with joy; they'll look up at you and almost talk and then they'll take another dive in that "TIZ" bath.

When your feet feel like lumps of lead—all tired out—just try "TIZ." It's grand—it's glorious. Your feet will dance with joy; also you will find all pain gone from corns, calouses and bunions.

There's nothing like "TIZ." It's the only remedy that draws out all the poisonous exudations which puff up your feet and cause foot torture.

A few cents buys a box of "TIZ" at any drug or department store—don't wait. Ah! how glad your feet get; how comfortable your shoes feel.

SON ADMITS MURDER TO FREE HIS MOTHER

New York, March 20.—Morris Reisler, son of "John the Barber," a run down fight promoter, sacrificed home, love and a career and went to prison for from twenty years to life to save his mother. He confessed that he had slain his aunt, Bertha Katz, with whose murder he and his mother were jointly charged. With his plea of guilty, his mother was permitted to walk from the court room a free woman. He said he had shot his aunt to break up an illicit love affair between her and his father.

Washing Won't Rid Head of Dandruff

"USE LIQUID ARVON"

The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

Do this tonight, and by morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop at once, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

You can get liquid arvon at any drug store and it never fails to do the work.

3 RUM-CRAZED YOUTHS WRECK SO. END CAFE

Crazed by liquor, three youths wrecked a lunchroom at Tremont and Waltham streets, beat up three of its patrons, terrified others by hurling dishes and chairs and fought a policeman who arrested one of them. The prisoner later tried to hang himself in the East Dedham Street Police Station.

When Patrolman Walter E. Macauley, attracted by the crashing of glass and the screams of the lunch room customers, entered the lunch room, one customer lay unconscious on the floor. A chair whizzed by his head and through a plate glass window. Two more customers, their faces livid with bruises, were desperately dodging missiles.

The trio promptly turned on Macauley, but when they realized that he was a policeman their ardor for battle cooled. Two broke away and escaped while Patrolman Macauley was overpowering the wildest of the trio, who fought like a demon.

AN OLD RECIPE TO DARKEN HAIR

Wyeth's Sage Tea and Sulphur Turns Gray, Faded Hair Dark and Glossy

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is musty and troublesome.

Nowadays we simply ask at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." You will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients, at very little cost. Everybody uses this preparation now, because no one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, thick and glossy and you look years younger.

"A positive revelation in unmarred melody"

IN appearance, a Columbia New Process Record resembles practically every other disc record. But, play this record on any phonograph and you will be amazed at the superb smoothness of outpouring melody.

In the brief interval before the music commences, you may detect the needle faintly whispering. Compare this with the strident scratch that greets you on other records. At the very first note of the prelude even this almost imperceptible sound dissolves. Compare this with the insistent scrape that intrudes itself through the music on other records.

This surface quietness that lets your ears, unhindered, hear the infinite variety of delicate shadings of the singer's voice, that translates for you the musician's sensitive touch into the glow of poetic imagination, is unparalleled in phonographic reproduction.

As an example of this "unmarred melody," go to any Columbia shop and ask to hear Al Jolson singing his latest, "Wanita," record A-3812. The music is lively and the words infectious, and admirers of Jolson's singing will especially appreciate the perfect reproduction of this clever actor's tone and expression. On the other side is another hilarious tre-t—Frank Crumit singing "Jimbo Jambo." It is like hearing Crumit himself.

Columbia's process of making records with a hard, durable core, overlaid with a new surface so marvelously smooth that the needle travels over it practically without friction, pronounced the death sentence on obnoxious scratch and scrape. The process is patented. No one else can make a record at all similar.

'CURE' BY X-RAY OF COUGH IS NOT POSITIVE

The new X-Ray "cure" of whooping cough, discovered and now being developed by Dr. Henry I. Bowditch and his associates, on the staff of the Boston Floating Hospital, is not final.

This is the consensus of opinion of physicians who have been conducting the experiments, and who caution the public not to become too optimistic as to the outcome.

They declare that a full year must elapse and hundreds of cases be treated, before the exact value of the discovery can be known. A special warning was issued to parents not to undertake to treat children with the X-Ray apparatus.

Miss Joan Barton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Barton, Jr., of Chestnut Hill, was prominent among the girls presented during the 1922-23 season. She made her bow at a dance at the Colton Club.

By BETTY ALDEN

ONE of the jolliest debs of the past season was dark-haired Joan Barton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Barton, Jr., of Chestnut Hill.

Miss Barton has lived abroad a great deal and speaks excellent French. She's vivacious and clever, and emanates "white awakeness." The type of girl who's doing something all the time. Once, for instance, she set about to master the gentle art of concreting becoming chapeaux. And did it.

She wears frocks that are distinctive, both as to design and color. She has, I should say, a dozen pongees for gaily-colored shawls. The Carmenlike ones with long, silk fringes that transform the wearer into a splash of color. At least, wearers like Miss Barton, who's a decided brunette, with dark, wavy hair, fine complexion and large brown eyes. She is, by the way, frequently mistaken for Miss Francesca Bevan Gould, who with her sister, Bertha, has danced her way in fame.

Miss Barton has an older sister, Miss Dolly Barton, whose engagement to Anthony W. Absolle of New York was announced this Winter.

MR. and Mrs. Chester W. Bliss of Commonwealth avenue, who've taken a villa at Santa Barbara for the season, have with them at the California resort for a several week's visit their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Amory S. Carhart (Isadore Bliss) and the latter's young son. Mr. and Mrs. Carhart are among the leading members of the younger-married at Tuxedo Park, where they have a country place. The Winter months they usually spend in New York.

MRS. GORHAM BROOKS and Miss Alison Houghton are among the Bostonians recently arrived in Bermuda at the Hotel Hamilton.

MR. and Mrs. Raymond Lee Whitman of Boston, who've been cruising off the Florida coast on board their yacht, the "Altamaha," have slipped anchor at Palm Beach. They plan later to sail to Daytona, where their craft will be put in dry-dock.

Miss Alice Thorndike of Boston, who has been with the Whitmans on their trip, left the party at Miami, planning to leave for the North. The Whitmans, who are of the short-loving Myopia Hunt clan along the North Shore, have a place in Hamilton known as "Brown's Hill."

MR. and Mrs. Harold J. Coolidge and their young family are sailing this week for Europe, where they plan to remain for several months. Upon their return to these shores they will go directly to their place at Pride's Crossing. Their town residence is on Berkeley street. Mrs. Coolidge, who was formerly Miss Edith Lawrence, is one of the younger matrons. She is a small woman with brown hair and brown eyes.

HENRY FORD BOOSTS POND CREEK WAGES

Welch, West. Va., March 20.—Wages and working conditions at the Pond Creek Mines, recently purchased by Henry Ford, have been promulgated. There is little difference between the scale and that of union pits in other States. However, the new scale is at least 20 per cent. higher for labor of all classes than heretofore paid in the West Virginia non-union fields.

BRITONS FIGHT FOR PUBLIC OWNERSHIP

London, March 20 (By International News Service).—The first general debate on socialistic principles in the history of the House of Commons is due tonight, when the resolution of Philip Snowden, Laborite, proposing nationalization of industries, is called up.

The resolution denounces "the capitalist system" as a failure and proposes that legislation be directed towards its gradual supercession "by an industrial and social order based upon public ownerships and democratic control of the instruments of production and distribution," but refraining to the state "the benefits of individual initiative."

Many amendments have been offered since the resolution was introduced last week. All the other parties, Unionists, Lloyd George Liberals and Asquithian Liberals oppose the resolution.

Sir Philip Lloyd Graeme, famous British financier, will lead the opposition to the measure. It is regarded as doubtful if the resolution reaches a vote, although the Labor members are insisting the House be put on record.

Meantime the labor situation in western England is becoming worse. Additional farm workers and miners have joined the workers' strike and the number of idle men is now approaching 50,000. Men employed in the building trades are threatening to join the walkout.

The miners' strike is extending to Wales. The strikers are receiving support from the building trades workers, who have refused a new wage agreement from the employers.

GIVES DISTRESS SIGN OF KLAN IN COURT

Chicago, March 20.—H. K. Ransey, imperial Kligraff of the Ku Klux Klan, and Robert E. Shepard, treasurer of the American Unity League and manager of "Tolerance," a publication opposed to the Klan, were principal witnesses at a hearing before the City Civil Service Commission of charges filed against Otto Nowotny, who, with William Greene, was discharged from the city fire department for being a Klansman.

Mr. Ransey defined the klan as a "patriotic organization" and declared a person cannot join unless he believes in the Christian religion. Roman Catholics and Jews are not precluded, he said, adding that they precluded themselves. Negroes are precluded because the organization is Caucasian, he said.

Mr. Shepard testified the "Tolerance" hired several investigators to seek out the klan membership and secrets. His investigators had been going to klan meetings since last June, he said, and added that his publication had printed the names of over 5,000 klansmen.

Shepard said he knew the signs, pass words, signals of distress and other secrets of the organization.

"Well, give the klan signal of distress, because they are going to need it," Attorney Patrick O'Donnell of the prosecution said.

Shepard placed the first finger of his right hand in the centre of his forehead and drew it down over the right eye to the centre of his right cheek. The hearing will be resumed tomorrow.

LYNN CHILD WAS BRANDED BY COOK STOVE

Lynn's great branding mystery has been solved.

These year-old William Victor Smith branded himself.

The youngster did this when he backed up against the oven door of his mother's cook stove at No. 21 acacia court, Lynn.

The letters "E. H." on the kid die's skin were impressed by the first letters of "Electric Finish," which stand out in relief on the oven door. The "mig" mentioned by the baby is the black stove.

Those Intriguing Boudoir Chairs at Paine's

"How intriguing!" a very modern demoiselle was heard to exclaim on seeing the new boudoir chairs at Paine's.

"Intriguing" is indeed the word; so jaunty are the lines, so fascinating the colorful Spring coverings, so irresistibly moderate the prices.

After seeing these bewitching chairs you will never be quite happy until you own at least one. You will be tempted to pick one up and carry it straight home with you so as not to lose a single hour of its delightful company.

You will enjoy, too, the luxury of choosing your covering in the piece and having your chair upholstered to order in Paine shops. Shall it be an imported block printed linen, a sunfast cretonne, a boudoir tapestry or a silk armure? The range of fabrics and patterns is remarkable. The shops are in form to turn out your order promptly.

Daily Prune Recipe

Shake hands with health—every day

Sunsweet Prunes Stewed:

First—Soak them in warm water to cover, over night if possible—but if not, for several hours at least. Second—cook them slowly until tender in the water in which they were soaked. Third—be sure you don't cook them too long for they will become too soft. Sugar is not required, as slow cooking brings out the rich fruit sugar in Sunsweet Prunes. If sugar is added, however, put it in after the prunes are cooked but while still hot so the sugar will dissolve. Most of the liquid will be absorbed, leaving a rich, thin syrup.

STAGE AND SCREEN

BOSTON AMERICAN

COMEDY HITS AMATEUR ACTORS

By NICHOLAS YOUNG.

LET the amateur beware—the amateur who feels the great dramatic urge and who cannot control its driving impulse. At any rate, let him take a short, quick glance into the mirror as it is held before its victims in George Kelly's "The Torch-Bearers"; then he will be cured, but possibly his friends and relatives may die of the shock.

Mr. Kelly's sparkling comedy of misguided and misled amateur actors carried high spirits into the Tremont last evening and filled that playhouse with more laughs than any theatre has a right to gather in a full season.

MISSES SUBTLETIES.

As a satirist Mr. Kelly may have missed some of the subtleties that mark an author as legitimate prey for collegiate professors of the drama and afternoon tea parties where dramatic writers are invited to appear as head-line attractions. He may have stumbled a bit in that respect, but he more than held his own as a writer of dramatic entertainment for the man who is expected to pay the prevailing rates at the box office. If you are in a mood for fun "The Torch-Bearers" will not only give you your money's worth, but there will be a lot of good laughs left over for the next day.

The little theatre movement—a highly decorative ideal of many otherwise useful community grouns—is the main object of Mr. Kelly's satirical shots. He has taken the dramatic amateur as he has found him and as most of us have discovered him from time to time, and turned the speech into a hilariously funny play. We cannot recall any farce of recent months that has pounded so hard upon the funny bone—or any play, comedy or farce, that has sent us from the theatre in such good humor.

CAPITAL PERFORMANCE.

If you can believe this author the ambitious amateur should consider public interest by attending plays—not acting them. Mr. Kelly developed a slight sign of weakness, however, when one of his principal characters—the man who nearly died of shame at the sight of his wife's wretched attempt at acting—qualified his criticism of the tragic affair by suggesting that properly directed the scheme might be able to stand without leaning. Arthur Shaw gave a capital performance of the tortured husband compelled to see his wife's folly, he was carried out of the theatre unconscious from the shock only added to the gaiety of the evening. Mary Boland was charming as the suddenly developed dramatic genius —charming physically and impressive as an artist. You wouldn't belive she could be so bad.

A splendidly trained company added its own gifts to the performance. Alison Skipworth, Helen Lowell, Douglas Garden, Rose Mary King and Booth Howard brought particular joy into the evening. There was not a character in the play that did not carry its core of laughter.

"The Torch-Bearers" is funny enough to be seen twice, because you couldn't possibly keep up with the hilarity in a single performance.

MEDFORD AMATEUR IN CAST OF "THE FOOL"

The first result of Alexandra Carlisle's effort to find and foster talent among the amateurs of Boston, and to extend a helping hand, is that last night Gordon Berry of No. 24 Spencer street, Medford, took his place in the cast of "The Fool" at the Selwyn Theatre.

Mr. Berry showed unusual promise at one of the public try-outs instituted by Miss Carlisle. He read the part of Umanski, the grief-stricken Pole in "The Fool," with very good effect. Of course, Miss Carlisle has no idea of turning novices into seasoned actors at a moment's notice. Mr. Berry was given a position in the mob scene in the third act of "The Fool" and Miss Carlisle will give her personal attention to coaching him for the role of Umanski. He will first rehearse his part as an understudy, and next season he will have an opportunity to play it in one of the minor companies.

ARMY PLANS AROUND WORLD AIR FLIGHT

Washington, March 20.— An around-the-world airplane flight is now under consideration by the army air service, it was learned unofficially today. Studies of possible routes already have been made and, though still incomplete, these investigations have progressed far enough to convince officials the proposed flight is entirely feasible. The army air service also has at least one "ship" which could start on the hop. Here is capable of making the flight.

AUTHOR PLAYS IN OWN PICTURE

"Your Friend and Mine," a photoplay of extraordinary merit, with the added feature of seeing the author of the story in one of the prominent roles, was given much spontaneous applause by large audiences at Loew's Orpheum Theatre yesterday. The featured players are Willard Mack, the author, Enid Bennett, Huntley Gordon and Rose Mary Theby. The vaudeville portion of the bill was headed by Johnny Elliott and a quartette of charming debutantes in a skit entitled "The Dancing Studio." Another lively act was supplied by Ed. Blondell, assisted by Gertrude Perry, in "The Lost Boy." Other features were La Sar and Dale, Brooks and Grayce, Dorothy Wahl and Francis and Wilson. A comedy and late news pictorial were also shown.

Self Mastery Through Conscious Autosuggestion
Only Authorized Book by EMILE COUE
PAGE 40

Mme. Castelli, aged forty-one, living at Einville (M.-et M.). Has suffered from intermittent rheumatic pains in the right knee for thirteen years. Five years ago she had a more violent attack than usual, the leg swells as well as the knee, then the lower part of the limb atrophies, and the patient is reduced to walking very painfully with the aid of a stick or crutch. She comes for the first time on the 5th of November, 1919. She goes away without the help of either crutch or stick. Since then she no longer uses her crutch at all, but occasionally makes use of her stick. The pain in the knee comes back from time to time, but only very slightly.

Mme. Meder, aged 52, at Einville. For six months has suffered from pain in the right knee accompanied by swelling, which makes it impossible to bend the leg. Comes for the first time on December 7th, 1917. Returns on January 4th, 1918, saying that she has almost ceased to suffer and that she can walk normally. After that visit of the 4th, the pain ceases entirely, and the patient walks like other people.

EDUCATION AS IT OUGHT TO BE.

It may seem paradoxical but, nevertheless, the education of a child ought to begin before its birth.

In sober truth, if a woman, a few weeks after conception, makes a mental picture of the sex of the child she is going to bring forth into the world, of the physical and moral qualities with which she desires to see it endowed and if she will continue during the time of gestation to impress herself the same mental image, the child will have the sex and qualities desired.

Spartan women only brought forth robust children, who grew to be redoubtable warriors, because their strongest desire was to give such heroes to their country; whilst, at Athens, mothers had intellectual children whose mental qualities were a hundred fold greater than their physical attributes.

The child thus engendered will be apt to accept readily good suggestions which may be made to him and to transform them into autosuggestion which later will influence the course of his life. For you must know that all our words, all our acts, are only the result of autosuggestions caused, for the most part, by the suggestion of example or speech.

MISS FRANKLIN HEADLINER AT KEITH'S

Irene Franklin, always one of Boston's favorites, is back in town again, topping the bill at Keith's this week. Her act this time is a little more pretentiously staged than anything she has attempted before and her flippant manner and "Kid" characterizations seem somehow a trifle subdued. She has a new cycle of songs, the music for which was composed by her late husband, Bert Green, and the words by herself.

Among her new numbers were: "In the Spotlight," "I Want to Go Back," "I've Lost My Dog," "What Have You Got on Your Hip?" "Help, Help, Help," and "Dirty Face." She also sang again one of her first hits, "The Waitress From Childs" and of course, "Redhead." She is assisted at the piano by Jerry Jarnagin.

Gordon Dooley and Martha Morton, youngest members of two famous families, now known as Mr. and Mrs. Dooley off stage, were well received, although not so much for what they did as for who they are. Outside of comedy by Dooley that borders closely on the slapstick, they failed to show their talent.

Other acts on the bill were Lester Crawford and Helen Broderick in "A Smile or Two," Mabel Ford with Golden and West; the Doll Sisters and an orchestra in a conglomeration of dance and jazz; Rae Eleanor Ball and Brother in a refined musical act; the Browns Sisters, accordeonists de luxe; Rekoma, an equilibrist, and Valentine and Bell in a bicycle act.

TOM SENNA TOPS BILL AT CASINO

Between "The Dancing Demons" and "The Greenwich Village Follies" on Tom Senna and Ray Read as featured comedians, also moving pictures and vaudeville, Waldron's Casino gave opening audiences yesterday a wealth of varied entertainment hard to equal.

"The Dancing Demons" justified their boast of being the fastest colored troupe before the public. They danced with verve and speed that brought rounds of applause. They showed themselves to be the strut and shuffle experts par excellence.

"The Greenwich Village Follies" also kept the audiences laughing as one burlesque after another on life in Manhattan's famous Bohemian quarter was unfolded.

A strong cast of principals supporting Senna and Read includes Miss Penny Hilson, prima donna; Gertrude Webber, ingenue; Ward and Bohlman, Margaret White, soubrette, and others.

'GREAT DIVIDE' AT ST. JAMES

It takes real versatility to jump from a small-town play to a drama of the proportions of "The Great Divide" as the Boston Stock Company proved equal to this feat and the St. James' patrons were given nearly three hours of unusual enjoyment at the opening performance.

Walter Gilbert, leading man, was given his chance to show that the spirit of Henry Miller still lives. For it was Henry Miller that made the role of Stephen Ghent, the rough and ready mountaineer, stand out among the leaders of the American stage.

Adelyn Hushnell as Ruth Jordan, the strange New England girl, was at her best and the role that was first featured by Margaret Anglin was enacted as Miss Hushnell could be expected to enact it, with all the sincerity and skill of a real artist.

The drama revolves around Ghent and Miss Jordan, opposites in feeling, culture and of widely divergent environments. The rough product of the mountains of the central west spring of a closely guarded, much chaperoned New England home thrown together furnished one of the prettiest romances that has been presented to the patrons of the St. James this season.

'FASCINATING WIDOW' GIVEN AT SOMERVILLE

An overflow audience greeted Tommy Martelle's return to Somerville yesterday. This versatile and well-liked player distinguished himself earlier in the season when he made his initial bow here in Julian Eltinge's internationally known musical comedy, "The Fascinating Widow," in which he appears again this week. Martelle's work stamps him as one of the most gifted female impersonators on the professional stage. "The Fascinating Widow" is produced on a lavish scale, with a company consisting of young folk in dazzling costumes.

Coming Plays

"Turn to the Right" will be presented at the St. James Theatre for one week beginning Monday, April 2.

Hazel Heyes, in "The Jazz Girl" will be the attraction at the Wilbur beginning Monday, April 2.

"The Merry Widow" is announced for the Colonial, beginning Monday, April 2.

Rose's Royal Midgets will be the feature of the bill at Loew's Orpheum next week.

"The Passion Play," in picture form, will be shown at Tremont for a single week beginning next Monday.

"Pinafore," with local talent and professional direction, will be a feature of the program at Loew's State for the week of April 16.

'SPICE OF 1922' DRAWS CROWD TO MAJESTIC

A new Eddie Cantor, not, of course, with the finish of the original, but with talent, personality and manner of getting his songs over that will make Mr. Cantor look to his own laurels in a few short seasons, appeared on the stage of the Majestic Theatre last night, when "Spice of 1922" returned to Boston for a week's engagement.

The new blackface comedian is well known to Boston theatregoers, for Georgie Price has been appearing here each season for quite some years past. In the second act he did his numbers in blackface in a style that stamped him as a real comedian.

The "Spice of 1922" is almost the same show that appeared earlier in the season at the Boston Opera House with the exception that it is apparent the hand of Censor John Casey has been at work. Still at that Mr. Casey has left plenty that is real "spice."

The revue is in two acts with thirty-two scenes, all of them lavishly mounted and gorgeously costumed.

The Garden of Eden, where, the program says, "woo originated," serves to introduce some fine dancing. The dancers are Arthur Corey as Adam, Elsie Wachita as Eve and Betty Jones as the spirit of the snake. The last named young woman is a talented dancer.

Of the female numbers in the company, Alice Ridnor and Martha Throop divided honors. Sam Hearn as a censor was the principal comedian and Armand Kaliz made an acceptable straight man.

The vaudeville team of El Brendel and Flo Bert brought roars of laughter all the time they were on the stage, and their up-to-date version of "Closer at the Rail" was a scream.

With its tuneful music, gorgeous coloring and its very name, "Spice of 1922" should have no difficulty in filling the Majestic Theatre during its run in Boston.

DANCING CONTINUES AT STATE BALLROOM

Enthusiastic dance lovers continue to flock to the State Theatre Ballroom in large numbers and this evening the usual assembly is held. In addition to the regular Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday affairs, this popular dancing auditorium extends every requirement for the safety and comfort of its patrons. The floor is one of the best of its kind in the country while the music of the dance compelling variety, is supplied by the State Theatre Ballroom Orchestra under the direction of the Lambert Brothers.

PLENTY OF FUN IN SHOW AT GAYETY

George P. (Hot Dawg) Murphy, who barks merrily but does not bite, heads the splendid cast of "Step Lively Girls," which kept opening audiences convulsed with laughter at the Gayety Theatre yesterday. Murphy, his associates in the cast and the twenty peachy chorus girls stepped at a brilliant pace through two acts and twelve scenes of a colorful, tuneful, musical burlesque.

"Hot Dawg," to use the familiar soubriquet which he gained by creating that famous part, was ably assisted by George Douglas, his comedy first aid.

Sadie Banks, who is a recent gain to burlesque fame from the Yiddish stage, showed remarkable versatility both as comedienne and dramatic actress.

Ellen Windsor, prima donna, sang in dulcet tone, and Leone Earle, the Eugenie and vaudeville favorite, had a particularly effective musical interlude, "Winsome Widows."

'ADAM'S RIB' AT LOEW'S STATE THEATRE

Cecil B. DeMille's newest picture was shown for the first time yesterday at Loew's State Theatre. The production is "Adam's Rib," a wholesome, entertaining comedy which depicts modern daughters of Eve in their charms, their loves and their pitfalls. It is a production of social life, excellently produced with all the characters played by artists prominent in the screen world, foremost of which are Milton Sills, Elliott Dexter, Theodore Kosloff, Anna Q. Nilsson and Pauline Garron. The picture, despite its title, has absolutely no reference to the Garden of Eden. The picture is of such unusual length that no companion photoplay is shown in the program for this week. Buster Keaton, however, served substantial comedy in his new two-reeler entitled "Day Dreams."

Copenhagen, March 20 (By International News Service).—The Norwegian Parliament today voted to abolish prohibition on heavy wines, much improved.

Plays That Remain

SHUBERT—The Greenwich Village Follies, with John E. Hazzard, Savoy and Brennan, a chorus of beauties and a gorgeous production.

SELWYN—"The Fool," Channing Pollock's play of up-to-the-minute Christianity, with Charles Millward and Alexandra Carlisle in the principal roles.

HOLLIS—"Lightnin'," now entering its thirteenth week in Boston and well started toward a new long distance record.

PLYMOUTH—"Just Married," a spirited farce with Vivian Martin and Lynne Overman carrying the heaviest part of the load.

WILBUR—"It is the Law," a screaming melodrama with an unusually interesting dramatic twist. It's creepy at times.

COLONIAL—Ed Wynn in "The Perfect Fool," a jolly entertainment that begins and ends with a laugh. Lots of girls, too.

ARLINGTON—William Courtenay, the champion love of the stage, up to his old tricks in a farce called "Her Temporary Husband."

PARK—"Brass," a photoplay based on Charles Norris' sensational story of marriage. Acted by a distinguished cast.

E. R. Stettinius Improves

New York, March 20.—Surgeons today declared that Edward R. Stettinius, of J. P. Morgan & Co., will soon be able to leave Roosevelt Hospital, where he underwent an operation. His condition is described as much improved.

RHEAULT ADDS NEW MYSTERY TO WEDDING SLIGHT

INVITED TO BRADLEY HOME BUT NOT TO CEREMONY

Why was Emile Rheault of Sherbrooke, Can., barred from the wedding of his brother, Captain Charles A. Rheault, and Miss Rosamond Bradley, Boston heiress?

That is the one big question that Boston's socially elect and others are trying to solve today.

Emile Rheault came all the way from Canada to see his brother married. When he arrived at the rectory of St. Joseph's Church, Roxbury, where the ceremony was performed, he was stopped by the police as he attempted to enter. They would not listen to argument. Emile had to stand out in the rain with the rest of the curious throng, brother or no brother.

POLICE OUST REPORTER.

All attempts on the part of reporters to get an explanation of the unusual occurrence proved futile. An

Robert Bradley, father of the bride, had given orders. These orders were obeyed. Captain Rheault would not lend an ear to the newspapermen who wanted to give him a chance to explain why his brother had been barred from his wedding. Captain Rheault apparently did not want to explain.

NEW TOUCH OF MYSTERY.

A new touch of mystery was added when Emile Rheault revealed the fact that he had not been sent an invitation to the wedding of his brother and Miss Bradley. He had an invitation to the wedding breakfast, but none to the ceremony.

Emile refused to tell the reporters what lay behind this apparent slight on the part of his brother. He explained that he was hurt and not a little angry when he was barred from the rectory, especially after coming so many miles to see his brother married. But as to why he was not an invited guest he would not explain.

As far as Emile is concerned he says that will always be a mystery. Emile disappeared after the wedding ceremony was over. He declared that he would never "go near the Bradley home for the wedding breakfast." He was not among those who shouted good-bye to the couple when they drove away in their shoe-bedecked automobile.

PHONES DENIAL.

A man calling himself Roger Cutler, a relative of the bride, telephoned the Boston American after the bride and groom had departed and denied that "the brother of Mr. Rheault" had been barred at the church.

"Mr. Rheault's brother is in Saskatchewan and was not here. He was unable to get here. That could not have been his brother," this man said.

Mr. Cutler then admitted that Captain Rheault has three brothers and that he did not know the first names of any of them. He maintained that the man who identified himself as Rheault's brother was not his brother and asked for a denial of the story. Mr. Cutler could not explain where the other two brothers of Captain Rheault were, however.

Barred at Wedding

EMILE RHEAULT
Brother of Captain C. A. Rheault, whose marriage to Miss Rosamond Bradley Emile was not permitted to witness through orders given to the police.

'PRINCE' TOLD IT TO WRONG MAN, NOW IN JAIL

Patrolman Morrisey of the Dudley street station goes blithely about his work today, for didn't "The Prince" tell his fortune? And wasn't it a nice fortune?

As rosy as the future Prince Lazull, whose first name is probably Lapis, painted for Patrolman Morrisey, his own at this writing seems very uncertain. He is in durance vile on the inconsequential and humiliating charge of theft, and that of the sum of $3—the price of one good fortune-telling.

The Prince Lazull recently knew what it was to be copy when he got mixed up in the affairs of Carl Sutters. Carl, the Adam of the back-to-nature pair, accused the prince of making love to his wife.

This account cannot be closed without divulging that Prince Lazull is, in private life, William Jones. He has been holding forth as a palm-reader, crystal-gazer and astrologer at No. 766 Dudley street, Upham's corner.

Twins! Two Sets in Year for Family in Haverhill

Haverhill, March 20.—Two sets of twins in twelve months——

It's a fact.

The second set have just been born to Mrs. Horace E. Gibbs of No. 269 Main street, Bradford district.

There's a boy and a girl, the same as the first time.

Pop Gibbs is bragging all over Haverhill. He is fifty-three. The mother is thirty-seven. They have eight in all.

U. S. SEEKS BOY AND GIRL MESSENGERS

The United States Civil Service Commission announces an open competitive assembled examination weekly beginning March 31 and continuing every Saturday until June 30, inclusive, to fill vacancies in the positions of messenger boy, messenger girl and elevator conductor in Boston. Application must be filed with the secretary of the First Civil Service District, Customhouse, Boston.

COURT UPHOLDS AUTO SEARCH FOR RUM

Macon, Ga., March 20.—The right of officers to search automobiles for liquor without warrants, was sustained by Federal Judge William H. Barrett today. His denial a petition of George Griffin and C. H. Brethour of Indianapolis for return of $500 deposited when they were arrested at Barnesville, Ga., last September.

"The opinion that officers can not search automobiles," declared the judge, "is due to erroneous information in the press."

"In a recent decision by this court any officer "has the right to search an automobile or any place where he has reason to believe a crime has been or is about to be committed. An officer may smell, see or feel whiskey in an automobile and under such circumstances has the right to search the automobile.

"Unreasonable search is the menace against which the fourth amendment of the Constitution and the search warrant statutes protect. Reasonable search is always permissible."

TELLS B. U. STUDENTS AGE NON-POLITICAL

"We are entering upon a non-political age. It may soon be more important to know who are the labor leaders of the country rather than who are the Senators," said J. Stitt Wilson of Berkeley, Cal., addressing the assembly of Boston University students and faculty at the Old South Church in the first of a series of lectures on "The Student and Social Problems."

DRINK WATER IF BACK OR KIDNEYS HURT

Begin Taking Jad Salts if You Feel Backachy

Too much rich food forms acids which excite and overwork the kidneys in their efforts to filter it from the system. Flush the kidneys occasionally to relieve them like you relieve the bowels, removing acids, waste and poison, else you may feel a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or side, headache, dizziness, the stomach sours, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges.

To help neutralize irritating acids and flush off the body's waste, begin drinking water. Also get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy, take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine and bladder disorders disappear.

This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys and stop bladder irritation. Jad Salts is inexpensive and makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then to help prevent serious kidney and bladder disorders.

By all means, drink lots of good water every day. Have your physician examine your kidneys at least twice a year.

JOY OF HEALTH WOMAN'S RIGHT

Mrs. Evans Freed from Female Weakness by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Detroit, Michigan.—"I had female weakness with pains in my back, and I could not stand on my feet for any length of time. I was working in a factory but had to quit as I was too much on my feet. A friend recommended Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to me, and I can hardly believe it myself that I am well. Oh, it is a grand thing to have your health! I feel well all the time and can go out like other women and not feel that awful torture. When I took your medicine first I thought it should cure after the first bottle, but I am glad my husband kept me at it. I have had nine bottles and now I am well."—Mrs. JENNY EVANS, 1604 Lafayette Blvd., Detroit, Michigan.

If you are suffering from displacements, irregularities, backache, nervousness or other forms of female weakness, you should take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

The reason is given in letters like these, and we have published thousands of them. You may expect that a medicine that has helped other women will help you. Try it.

HUB GIRL SAVES 600 AT FIRE IN TURKEY

Constantinople, March 20.—Miss Pauline Allen of Boston, a Near East relief worker, was the heroine of the big fire which destroyed the building on the Bosphorus housing 600 Greek refugees.

Miss Allen led a rescue party of fifty-five officers and blue jackets from the destroyer McCormick and the repair ship Denebola, commanded by Captain Pratt Mannix, of Providence, R. I., for 500 yards through a blaze of shipping.

All the refugees were rescued. Two large Turkish palaces adjoining were saved by the action of the Americans, despite opposition from the Turkish police.

Miss Allen led the sailors through the big building, guiding the terrified women and children and bringing them out safely with their belongings.

ENDS LIFE IN GRIEF OVER SON'S DEATH

Eleven hours after he had fired a bullet into his brain, Louis Bopp of No. 685 Boulevard, Revere, the amusement magnate, died at St. Petersburg, Fla., where he was spending the Winter.

Despondency, due to the death of his son, Louis Bopp, Jr., during the influenza epidemic of 1918, is believed the cause of the suicide.

Bopp was widely known as the proprietor of many amusement places at Revere Beach and other Summer resorts in various parts of New England. He was the operator of the Hippodrome and Flying Horses.

The dead man was accompanied by his wife and two grand-children, the sons of Louis, Jr.

Causes for Neuritis Pain

Old Prescription Proves Very Effective

THE steady, excruciating ache of Neuritis that penetrates to the very bone, or that other form that feels like a "crick in the neck," yields very slowly to ordinary treatments. Neuritis is really inflammation of the nerves. Sometimes more than one set of nerves is afflicted—this is called multiple Neuritis and is apt to prove quickly fatal.

Because Neuritis is a nerve disease it usually yields very quickly to the quieting soothing effect of that old prescription dispensed in drug stores for nearly 30 years under the name of Orangeine. One or two powders is enough for most cases.

Hamm, Germany, March 20 (By the Associated Press).—In a resolution adopted by the leaders of the Mine Workers' Association of Germany the government is called upon to "leave no possibility unexhausted to end the Ruhr battle and settle the reparations crisis through negotiations."

It opposes any attempt to cripple the peaceful resistance campaign or, on the other hand, to prolong the struggle unduly, and it demands the suppression of every movement which is aimed at producing armed opposition either from inside the Ruhr or outside of it.

"State of War" in Russia if Lenine Should Die

Stockholm, March 20 (By International News Service).—A "state of war" may be declared in Russia to protect the Communist revolutionary regime if Premier Lenine should die, according to news from Moscow today.

Reports taken from the official Bolshevist organ, Izvestia, indicated a factional struggle was brewing and that it would break out openly if Lenine died.

President Kuleniev of the Soviet Council is said to be in favor of granting full administrative powers to the Committee of Commissars but he is opposed by Leon Trotzky, commissar for war and by one or two other powerful members of the Moscow government.

Declares Allies Ban Relief Work in Ruhr

Berlin, March 20. (By the Associated Press).—An Essen dispatch to Vorwaerts reports that the Rhineland Commission has issued a new order forbidding activity in the occupied area by any such organization as the Ruhr Relief Society. The collection of funds, sale of stamps, or payments in connection with relief work are also said to have been placed under the ban.

The newspaper says under the authority of this order numerous seizures have already been made. Three cities are specifically cited in which a total of 185,000,000 marks are said to have been taken. These include Rheydt, where the Belgians appropriated 100,000,000 marks belonging to the city, 5,000,000 intended for the unemployed and 18,000,000 held by the Reichsbank for distribution to the railwaymen; Muenchen-Gladbach, where 10,000,000 marks in funds for the unemployed were seized, and Hainsberg, where the seizure involved 105,000,000 marks.

MISSING MAN'S WIFE ACCUSES GIRL

Wellesley Graduate Admits Thefts

FOR TEN YEARS ETHEL BON HAS REHEARSED THE DANCE she will do tonight at Beacon Hall in Brookline. She will dance in a gorgeous beaded gown and head dress, and the ghost of Pietro, the Hurdy-Gurdy man, will applaud from the wings. (Photograph by Marceau)

ETHEL BON'S ROSARY

Every day Ethel Bon of Roxbury counted her beads, every one apart—every day for ten years. They were not prayer beads, although in the heart of the sixteen-year-old girl they represented a prayer.

Funny hobby for a girl—collecting beads. Nobody knew what they were for excepting her mother. For ten years they plotted together, and tonight Mrs. Bon will sit in front and try hard to keep from shrieking "Bravo!" when Ethel, with her beads of ten years' hoarding, comes on and dances like a Pagan nymph.

In the crude wings at Beacon Hall, in Brookline there will stand the benign ghost of the old Hurdy-Gurdy man who made a miser of beads out of the little Roxbury girl. Pietro was his name, and the children on Ethel's street loved him and loved his wise-eyed monkey that collected the coins for him.

Pietro has passed along. Today Nirvana he turns the candle of the ancient organ and the lords whirl about in abandoned dance, just as the children of Townsend street used to do in the days when Ethel met Pietro.

Pietro was loved because for the children of Townsend street he was a truly true and official harbinger of spring. They looked with suspicion on the sparrow first born in the crannied roof, called it a pest, but the kids kept on their knees. Even the pioneer robins couldn't convince them. But when Pietro came with his funny smile his funny old hurdy-gurdy and his funny little monkey, then they knew spring had come and trees dared. And now with such grace and such emotion as Ethel was then six

Ethel Begins to Save Beads

Pietro picked Ethel out and shook head and told her that some day she would astonish the world with her dancing.

That day Ethel began to collect beads.

She never confided her ambition to her father. He is a hard headed attorney at law. His head is full of duces tecum, writs of habeas corpus, I pray Your Honor's judgments, move for a new trial and where were you on the night of October 25. He knows nothing of the joy of flinging your body in the ecstatic frenzy of the dance.

When he gave Ethel a dime for candy, she bought beads. On her seventh birthday when he asked his daughter what she wanted for a gift she told him she desired above all things a string of pearls. He never suspected that she took the pearls off the string and added them to her neck necklace one at a time. By week the store of beads and pearls grew. And throughout the years Ethel danced.

Her father frowned upon her dancing. There were many family conferences. In vain the mother pleaded that the child longed to dance and was most happy when dancing. The attorney father quoted Brigham vs. Brigham, in which a man got a divorce from his wife because she loved to dance. He quoted Craiksbiel vs. Benton. Ethel and will visit her parents the Harry Hays Morgans, in Brussels, for several weeks, returning to Newport in time to take part in the early season activities along Bellevue avenue and out on the cliffs

Treasure Grew and Grew

So Ethel continued to dance without her father knowing about it. And the treasure chest of beads grew and grew

Last week the chest overflowed. Mother and daughter worked feverishly, fashioning a diaphanous dancing gown that was aglow and ablaze with beads of all colors and descriptions. Every afternoon, when Ethel came rushing home from Roxbury High School, where she's a sophomore, she resumed the collaboration with her mother, and when the doorbell gave warning that Father Bon was home they hid the beads and the beaded gown and studied.

Tonight at Beacon Hall the Society David Vikar Choulin holds its affair. There will be many numbers on the program. The amateur entertainers have been rehearsing for ten days.

But the prodigy from Roxbury is the star. Father Bon will learn about it when he reads this. He will try to appeal his case. But there's no appeal in a case like this.

Pietro, whose hurdy-gurdy is stilled these last few years, as far as mortal ears can hear it, knew what he was talking about. For the unspoken prayer of Ethel's rosary has been answered, and on slight she dances.

PRICE OF SUGAR TO RISE AGAIN

Big Dealers See No Chance of Break Until After Another Advance

There will be no "break" in the prevailing prices of sugar, wholesale or retail, before May 1 and then the prices may go up.

This was admitted today by Boston dealers, who declare that the Cuban shortage, or reported shortage of the raw sugar is responsible for the present and future conditions.

While it is conceded that the sugar supply in Boston is "normal," the dealers indicated that they expect no downward revision until there have been bigger prices

An official of the American Sugar Refining Company stated today that "it is pure guesswork to predict the conditions in the sugar market during the coming summer, but he admitted that the reported shortage in Cuban fields may cause an upward jump when the "sugar consuming season" opens in May.

RETAIL PRICE 10 CENTS.

The manufacture of [illegible] and syrup during the Summer will also have a tendency to increase the demand for sugar, and, consequently, cause a jump in price, according to the Suffolk Sugar Supply Company

Expected European demands from Cuba may also influence the price of sugar in this country, it was stated by one dealer. At present it was said, the exist of Europe's sugar is small due to the continued shortage in wholesale houses in Boston is selling for [illegible] except [illegible] at the Revere Sugar Company which quotes 9½c and the retail price of 10 20 in small lots and 10 cents in large quantities. COLD FELLS YOUTH WHO FLEES HOME

Half frozen, eleven-year-old Joseph Verga, of No. 27 Williams street, Chelsea, was picked up in a doorway in Maverick square, East Boston, by Patrolman Benjamin F. Poole. After robbing out his story to Patrolman Poole the boy was taken to East Boston police station and treated to hot coffee and cake. Then the Chelsea police were notified and, soon afterward, a badly frightened boy was restored to the arms of a much-worried father.

Tex Rickard Wants McTigue for Big Outdoor Show.

Tex Rickard has submitted an offer to Joe Jacobs, manager of Mike McTigue, for a big outdoor show this Summer. Before accepting the offer, Jacobs will try to make a cleanup of the [illegible] weight and heavyweight [illegible] Europe. The new words [illegible] heavyweight champion will be able to make a neat financial [illegible] by battling Jack Bloom [illegible] Beckett, Ted (Kid) Lewis and [illegible] Carpentier. McTigue should be able to defeat all of these [illegible]

McTigue is a cunning, crafty boxer, while he packs a hard punch in his right. The round-by-round story of Mike's bout with Sibi shows that the Irishman did not have much trouble avoiding the Senegalese's wild swings, while he himself counted frequently with crushing punches. In the eighteenth round, McTigue almost knocked Sibi out with a right hand punch to the jaw.

Georges Carpentier Proves a Poor Sportsman.

Georges Carpentier has not added to his prestige by attacking the decision which gave Mike McTigue the championship. The Frenchman has been the child of fortune so far in getting the breaks of the boxing game are concerned. Never a great fighter, Carpentier was a "built up" by good publicity [illegible] some American fighters who [illegible] lined the life in Paris well enough not to knock off gorgeous Georges.

Georges Carpentier

Carpentier probably feels that if he were in good condition he would be able to defeat Sibi, while he knows he would not have a chance of victory if pitted against McTigue.

HARVARD WILL PROMOTE BIG SCHOOL MEETS

By FRED C. LANE.

The progress made by the Massachusetts Athletic Association in the promotion of scholastic sport events [illegible] gained recognition from the leaders.

The Harvard Athletic Association has assumed the supervision of the State High Athletic Association's triple scholastic track meet, which will be held on March 3 at the East Armory.

The meet next year, and probably for some years to come, will be held at Mechanics Hall on the afternoon of the Harvard-Dartmouth-Cornell track meet. Although the meet will be known as the state's interscholastic Indoor Track meet, it does not [illegible] the prestige the association obtained, [illegible] the interest of the Harvard Athletic [illegible]

Harvard, always ready to assist [illegible] athlete, was impressed with the business-like manner in which the meets were conducted and was willing to assist the organization, which has been in existence only seven years.

Not only has Harvard promised to give it support, but has assumed all financial responsibility. The meet on March [illegible] of the best attended scholastic indoor track events ever held [illegible] of the financial gain is close to $500.

Harvard will go a step farther and [illegible] is evident from the announcement made that after this year the [illegible] annual Harvard interscholastic meet, which this year will take place at the Stadium on May 12, will be combined with the State school outdoor meet.

There was one other change decided upon by Chairman James E. Feeney of the Massachusetts Athletic Association and the Harvard authorities. In the future the public high schools will be divided into two classes. Such a move will give the smaller high schools a chance to compete with their equals. The class A division will find such schools as Medford, Newton, Brookline, Lynn Classical, Lynn English, Cambridge High and Latin, and Hingham Technical listed.

It is not unlikely that the Boston schools, excluded from the state meet, will now see their way clear to take part.

Picking the winners in the registration names is one of the indoor sports indulged in by the student

MISS BANCROFT SAILS FOR ENGLAND

Miss Leslie Bancroft of the Longwood Cricket Club sailed today on the [illegible] bound for Wimbledon, England, to win back the laurels lost by Mrs. Mallory. Miss Bancroft will be the main hope of the United States in this great International Tournament. This will be [illegible] first [illegible] abroad in search of new tennis honors, and interest in the result of her visit to foreign courts is high in this country.

Leslie Bancroft.

The Boston girl was outranked only by Mrs. Mallory last season and her game is more diversified than that of the national title holder, and for that reason alone she should be able to make a better showing against Mlle. Lenglen should the latter not. It is not to be supposed, however, that Miss Bancroft will be able to accomplish what no other woman player in the world has yet been able to do, namely, to defeat the French girl on British or French courts. Mrs. Mallory is the only player to score over Mlle. Lenglen in the singles since the latter first won the English championship, and [illegible] victory was won on the turf of the West Side Tennis Club at Forest Hills in 1921.

If Miss Bancroft is able to fight her way through the great field at Wimbledon to the finals or even the semi-final round she will be doing all that can be expected of her. Miss Elizabeth Ryan, of America, and Miss Heamish, Mrs. Peacock, Mrs. Satterthwaite and Miss McKane, of England, are just a few whom Miss Bancroft may have to eliminate before she can hope to get within striking distance of the championship, supposing the luck of the draw does not bring her against Mlle. Lenglen in the early stages of the tournament. It is a monumental task that confronts the star of the Longwood Club, but no matter how she fares Miss Bancroft will carry America's hopes to the end.

BRAVES OUGHT TO BEAT PHILS AND DODGERS

By THOMAS L. CUMMISKEY.

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 20.—"I don't know about those Braves, they are apt to do a lot," is, in short, what a number of baseball men are saying about the Boston Nationals. "Wouldn't be surprised very much," the talk goes on, "if they beat out the Brooklyns and Phillies anyway."

So say we, after watching them in training in this lovely city on Tampa Bay. They are hopping to it every minute, snap, dash and go, up and down the line. Unmistakable cheer and ambition exists, and, also, a laudable spirit of the happy family kind, of great worth to any club.

If the Braves get off the best foot forward, the momentum, plus this dashing, driving way of theirs, may see them making a lot of trouble all around the circuit. It certainly does seem they'll get out of the cellar, where they finished last season after much hard luck in injuries and failure to ever really get started.

The new syndicate owning the Braves, of which Christy Mathewson is president, and ex-Judge Emil Fuchs of New York, vice-president, has come into a club in which youngsters predominate. It was the idea of George Washington Grant, former owner, to scout around everywhere and get likely looking lads.

The job of getting them, in which Art Devlin, old star third baseman of the Giants, had a leading part, seems to have been very well done.

Four Youngsters Are Putting Up Great Battle

This is particularly true of the field. For short and third, four youngsters are putting up a grand battle. They are Robert Smith, from New Orleans; "Jocko" Conlon, the Harvard star; Ernest Padgett, obtained from Memphis, and Carl Schmehl from Waterbury, Ct.

A new man will be at short this year, Toney Boeckel has a fight to hold third.

They are all fast and clever at fielding, some more so, and have been hitting the ball pretty consistently. So far Smith and Schmehl have been spinning. "Jocko" and Padgett, however, indicate they are going to make a strong bid to be retained.

Smith Has Been at Third Quite a Bit

Smith has been at third quite a bit, while Conlon and Padgett have been in action at short mostly. Schmehl, because Horace Ford, the flashy regular, has a sore arm, has been doing a lot of work at second.

"Stuffy" McInnis, the vet, lately of the Indians and Fred Haney, the youngster obtained from New Orleans late last season, are slugging battle for first base. It looks as though both would see a lot of work this Summer. "Stuffy" looks pretty good in practice games, but Henry is full of spryness, now gone in a considerable degree from the vet. McInnis' experience of course is a big factor for him.

Felix Looks Good for Place in the Outfield

Felix, up from Shreveport, has been doing great things batting and fielding. It looks as though such capable chaps as Walter Cruise and Al Nixon, vets, will be outdone by him.

Felix is a right-handed batter while Southworth and Powell are left-handed, as is Cruise. Nixon bats right-handed.

TOM KIRBY OUT FOR AMATEUR TITLES

With the annual New England boxing championship only a few days away, interest in the tournament is at a fever heat, and it is predicted that the biggest crowd that ever witnessed such a tournament will be on hand. The largest list in the history of the N. E. A. A. A. U. has been received for the tourney, while the advance sale has proved extraordinary. It looks like a sell out.

Tom Kirby

This tournament will be held at Mechanics Building Friday night.

Tom Kirby of Roxbury is expected to prove one of the sensations of the tournament. Kirby has been one of the big guns of the simon pure season.

Kirby will enter two classes in the tourney. He will be entered both in the 175-pound class and the heavyweight division. This will prove nothing new for the Roxbury boy, as he performed the same stunt at the junior national champions in New York recently.

After winning the 175-pound class Kirby passed up an opportunity to win the heavyweight division. He fought his way into the finals, however.

Kirby has promised his Roxbury friends to fight his way through both classes Friday night. Kirby looms up as one of the most formidable starters for the national championships.

Jack Conway Picks Friedman and Ryan to Win

Jack Conway says: "We are picking Abe Friedman to shade Spencer Gardner in their bout at the Armory A. A. tonight. It should be a fast, bitter quarrel.

W 38 — L 7

"If Friedman is a favorite at post time, Gardner will be the best short end proposition of the year. Any bird who can defeat Young Montreal and Terry Martin, is the turkey's wishbone.

"We are stringing along with Frankie Ryan in his tussle with Tibbie Lawrey."

HAVERHILL HAS HOPES FOR GULIAN

Haverhill, March 20.—No effort will be made by the School Board, for some time to come, to secure football coach for the Haverhill High 1923 eleven, as the position will be kept [illegible] Captain "Mac" [illegible] Brown University, [illegible] signed to the [illegible] school [illegible]

"There is no one in view, said Superintendent of Schools Allen L. Benson, "and I feel hopeful that Gulian will reconsider and accept the position within the next three months, as he is just the type of a man that the School Board wants.

"I personally believe that 90 per cent. of Haverhill people approve the selection of the School Board, and while I tried to have him reconsider his decision as of the offer, I have not given up hope that they will yet obtain his services as coach."

Around [illegible] high school, connected with the 1922 football squad, all except four of the players approved the selection of Gulian.

After the meeting a telegram signed by those who approved the choice of the school board was sent to Gulian, agreeing to support him as coach if he reconsiders and decides to come to Haverhill.

The controversy over the election of Gulian as coach by the school board has become so serious that, as a result of the statement of Gulian that with trouble on he would not come to Haverhill under any consideration, it is intimated that football at the high school may be abolished unless more conservative methods are adopted by the critics of the members of the school board.

GOLF CHAMPS TO PLAY IN ENGLAND

New York, March 20.—Walter Hagen and Gene Sarazen, leading American professional golfers, and embryo motion picture stars, have made game reservations in the coming British open tournament, during which Hagen will defend his title, according golfing circles today.

Hagen, his touring companion, Joe Kirkwood, and Sarazen expect to sail from New York about May 1. Hagen is understood to have made arrangements for appearing in the movies, as Sarazen is doing already. Sarazen, it is understood, has discarded his rich-faced clubs, as their use is forbidden in England, and is practicing backspin shots daily with clubs that he will be permitted to use in the British open.

LOCAL SYNDICATE BUY COLUMBUS BALL CLUB

Columbus, O., March 20.—Purchase of the Columbus American Association Baseball Club by a number of Columbus business men is being negotiated, it became known today.

C. M. Wetrum, representing local capital, is said to have visited Chicago recently, conferring with George T. Burns, the club president and representative of Thomas E. Wilson, owner of approximately 60 per cent. of the club stock. He is said to have offered between $125,000 and $135,000 for Wilson's stock.

J. & P. ELEVEN IN SOCCER TILT

By ART CURLY

Jimmy Robinson, the gentleman who introduced indoor soccer to Greater Boston fans at the Commonwealth Armory and who has staged many fine exhibitions since he started this Winter, reports that he has nearly completed arrangements for a game between the strong J. & P. Coats outfit of Pawtucket, R. I., and the classy Clan Sutherland aggregation of Brookline.

This game, if Robinson is able to arrange for it to be played next Saturday night, would prove a much greater attraction than the Fore River-Abbott Worsted battle, which drew the biggest crowd of the indoor season, for the Pawtucket eleven is made up of nationally known stars and it is tied with Bethlehem Steel for top honors in the professional American League.

Clan Sutherland is a worthy opponent for the "Jay Pees," for since the ice and snow stopped outdoor competition, Green and McDonald of the Brookline management have added several real stars to their lineup and its strength has been proven in the Armory, where the General Electrics went down to defeat and Fore River was on two occasions held to a very low score.

CALZA SAYS HE WILL TOSS STASIAK

Either George Calza or Stanley Stasiak, the youthful wrestling stars who battle at the Old Howard's show at the Grand Opera House on Thursday night, will be the next world's champion, according to many keen judges of mat affairs.

Stanley Stasiak

Calza and Stasiak both have youth on their side. Each has been treveling at a sensational clip during the last year.

As Strangler Lewis, world's champion, is slipping, it is the belief of many that a youngster like Calza or Stasiak has the best chance of winning the championship.

Calza says he will toss Stasiak when they mingle at the Old Howard's show.

"The funny part about this match is that the Pole has agreed to throw me twice in seventy-five minutes," said the Italian champion. "I intend to force the issue from the start and feel rather confident I shall pin Stasiak to the mat inside of an hour."

Your Hair
Will Now Stay Combed
Even After Washing

How many times have you "put off" washing your hair because you knew that you couldn't comb it or "do a thing with it" for several days thereafter?

Now you can wash your hair just as often as you like—comb it any style and it will stay that way all day.

Thus Stacomb has entirely removed the dread of unruly hair after shampooing—by replacing the natural oils washed out.

Even the most dry and brittle hair is made soft and lustrous with Stacomb.

For Unruly Hair

And while men, women and children all find Stacomb indispensable for controlling the hair just after it has been washed, millions are using it daily for wiry, fractious hair—for soft and fluffy hair and for any other kind of hair that won't stay combed.

Apply Stacomb in the morning—comb hair any style and it stays that way all day.

Excellent for training your boys' hair.

McINNIS PLAYS FIRST BASE FOR BRAVES AGAINST SENATORS

ERNIE PADGETT CHOSEN FOR SHORTSTOP JOB

By NICK FLATLEY.

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 20.—Manager Mitchell introduced a couple of new athletes into the varsity lineup today against the Washington Senators. He had little Ernie Padgett at shortstand Stuffy McInnis at first base. The rookie and the veteran have rounded into good form and thereby made things a bit more intricate for Mitchell, who finds the fair Floridan landscape all gummed up with infielders.

It was a foregone conclusion, of course, that Stuffy would park his athletic figure on first base as soon as he was ready. Four days have made him but wan also ambitious. He likes the crowd on the ball club, and the spirit of the boys, and one wouldn't be far amiss in predicting a very good season for the Gloucester veteran.

The tiny Padgett is another of those shortstops Smith and Conlon had the first chance to limelight it, but the midget has been knocking at the door ever since he put on his togs and collected his first case of sunburn.

He handles a ball very well, can make a quick throw, at least as well as anybody on the squad, and hits them on the nose. Matter of fact, he looks like the most dangerous hitter of all the kids present.

Better in the Infield Than They Were Year Ago

Whatever finally happens, it's beginning to look as if the Braves would be a lot better on the infield this season than they were a year ago. There are four veterans who can do a whole lot of real stuff, and there are five anxious kids screaming around, pining to be in there.

The invasion of the 3 monsters has been a great thing for the old timers. They are hustling at every known do. Usually an established athlete loafs a bit in the Spring, secure in the knowledge that his job is safe.

But things change when youngsters with real class step into competition. The old game is full of incidents regarding unknowns who were stuck in for injured regulars, and who remained attached to the front line ever after.

Tourists Flock Into the Grandstand Free

Whereforo each practice session beseheers sparkles with fast stuff, and the only birds who don't turn themselves rapt are the tourists who flock into the grandstand. The club could use a lot of jack by charging for the workout sessions. But that's against the policy, even though it's being done in other camps.

Horace Ford developed a bit of a lame wing yesterday, caused, no doubt, by the high winds that have been whaled thru way by the Scott's stamps. But the wing-ache cleared today to let Horace catch a second base as the boys trooped to repel the Washington invasion.

Usually Serious Manager Is Getting Optimistic

The usually serious manager of our ball club is getting optimistic these days, as he watches things develop. He came here with a flock of worries on his mind, as well as his thinning hair. He needed a couple of infielders a few young pitchers, and an outfielder.

As things look now, he has 'em, though that's an awful lot to expect of any one Spring. Scouts from the minor league clubs who flit around the South in the Spring, picking up loose talent, are besieging the Braves pilot for some of his young infield ers, but it's a moral certainty that none of them will be let loose before the training period ends some three weeks hence.

All Look Better Than Last Year's Utility Men

All the new candidates look far and away better than any of the utility material that was around these parts in '22. And, if you recall, managers and players on other teams were all predicting a pennant chance for the Braves then.

"And it's going to be a tough job weeding unlook out of this squad," remarks Mitchell, "but that's no reason for complaint. You can't have too many good ball players around, especially young ones. Three or four of these kids here must be at least as good as some of the minor leaguers who were hitting down fortunes during the Winter meetings.

New Material Fits in Perfectly to Build Club

In fact the new material seems to fit in perfectly with what was needed to clinch the building of a real ball club.

There's Conlon, Smith, Padgett and Schmidt, not a lot better than the average infield prospect. Felix is a fine outfielder, as well as a good hitter, and just gives us the right number and kind of fly chasers.

And some of these new pitchers look very good. In fact the worst of it so far is better than any of the new kids we had with us that year. And a couple of the boys seem to have the stuff to stick it along in the big show.

Managers Never Intend to Go Nuts in Spring

Maybe Spring optimism, of course, but managers are never inclined to go cuckoo in the Springtime. They may get wild when all the bush league phenoms explode, but they very rarely boost the baby athlete until the real test comes.

Mitchell divided his squad yesterday afternoon and staged a seven-inning practice game, which Hennery Gowdy's swatting outfit collected, 10 to 2. Smith hit a homer to keep the manager's mind on him, while Conlon cracked out a pair of doubles so that he wouldn't be forgotten

POLISHING UP THEIR BATS

B. U. NINE TO PRACTICE IN ARMORY

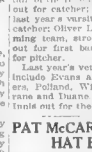
The first out-in-uniform practice of the Boston University baseball nine will be held tomorrow afternoon in the Cadet Armory.

Some of the new men who are expected to cause of their good work in other fields of sports include William H. Sass, for four years Quincy High player and pitcher on last year's Boston baseball team. Tom Hill, fielder on last year's baseball team of the freshmen; John Fewer, West Roxbury High player and a member of the varsity baseball team last year; Oliver Cole captain of the college basketball team, and four varsity squad, out for catcher; Charles Kelliher, of last year's varsity squad, out for catcher; Oliver Latour, on the swimming team, strong at Amherst and out for first base, Louis Berg, out for pitcher.

Last year's veterans out for places include Evans and Small for pitchers, Folland, Williamson and Cochrane and Duane Hennessey and Mc-Innis out for the infield.

PAT McCARTHY HAS HAT BACK IN RING

Pat McCarthy Roxbury ring warrior, has cast his hat into the ring again. After a long absence from the squared circle arena McCarthy has returned to the game under the management of Jim Dorgan and has donned the attire of George Robinson.



Pat McCarthy

There was a break between McDonald and Robinson following the Robinson-Hawkins Kelly bout. Tis said that a difference as to what a manager's services are worth caused the split. Since then Robinson has been managed by Charley Cardio and Kid Block.

As soon as he took over the direction of McCarthy, Macdonald announced that a Robinson bout would be his first objective.

"I think I was chiefly responsible for what success Robinson had," said MacDonald today. "The Cambridge negro proved an increase and broke away from my management.

"I think I now have a man in the person of Pat McCarthy who will trounce Robinson. I believe that my more presence in McCarthy's corner is enough to frighten Robinson half to death.

"I consider McCarthy the world's best light heavyweight. I think he is capable of defeating Gene Tunney or Mike McTigue."

DELANEY-O'GATTY BOUT IS STOPPED

Providence, March 20.—The main bout between Jack Delaney of Bridgeport and Jimmy O'Gatty of New York, at the Veterans of Foreign Wars show in Infantry Hall, was stopped in the fifth round by Referee Jack Finnell and declared no contest. Neither showed an inclination to fight.

In the semi-final Young Eddy of Providence won the decision over Jimmy Wilde of Taunton after eight hard rounds. Red Barthes of Fall River stopped Babe Williams of Providence in the fourth round of the opener.

GIANTS TALK A TRADE FOR RAWLINGS

By DAVID J. WALSH.

New York, March 20.—Johnny Rawlings, emergency man with the Giants for several years and hero of the 1921 World Series will be waffed away in a trade wind if reports around these particular parts are to be credited.

John is still quite a ball player and might prove as handy as a spare tire to the Giants this season, but McGraw is said to have other plans.

Rawlings.

He is quite enamored of the ability of a young shortstop named Travis Jackson, and it is understood he means to form a shortstop combination between Travis and John, the latter would draw a crowd as ticket sweeper.

In support of this belief rumor has it that the Giants are willing to accommodate the Cubs and team on a harrowing tour of Northern hamlets and villages.

DON'T LET THE BOSS SEE A CHIP ON YOUR SHOULDER.

Because you have been offered some good jobs do not get the idea that you will "take none of the boss' back talk."

The jobs you have been offered might not be open to you now.

The manner and conditions under which you leave your present job will color the opinion of those who have heretofore offered you a position.

No employer wants a man around who carries a chip on his shoulder.

Aggressive men—aggressive in carrying out the principles and rules of their establishment—are the kind of employes sought by those who need help.

Men who do not become angry and sullen when instructed to carry out orders from headquarters are desirable.

If you are fired for this reason you will find it difficult to get a worth while job anywhere.

Give the best there is in you to your employer and if you dislike him hunt another job, but do not "slow up" or become disinterested in your job.

To "be down on the job" hurts—the one who indulges in this sort of performance more than the employer, for it injures the reputation.

BEDOUIN LOVE SONG

(Modern Version)

FROM the boarding house I come to thee
In a flivver with one flat tire;
And the stewed tickets are left behind
In the speed of my desire.
My Gress suit is a hired one,
My overcoat isn't my own;
When the cabaret bill is paid
My money will be blown.
I love thee, I love but thee
From evening until dawn.
And you, my dear, will love me, too
Until my cash is gone.

THE NTH COMMANDMENT

A Film Romance From the Great Story by FANNIE HURST

Read This Story of Everyday Life on This Page Day by Day and Then Watch for It on the Screen

READ THIS FIRST

In the basement of the Mammoth Department Store Spring has cast a spell among the workers. Angie Sprunt, who has been on the stage, and Sara Juke, in the corset department, firm friends, feel that they should be anywhere but where they are. Jimmy Fitzgibbons, the Beau Brummel of the basement, bangs the piano and sings the latest songs, and Max Pluto, who admires Angie, suggests a trip to the beach. Sara, a pretty girl, longs for the country. A party is made up to go to the skating rink, where Harry and Jimmy nearly come to blows.

Screen Version Novelized

By Jane McLean

MR. PLUTE opined that women were queer, and Sara proceeded to prove it by stopping to chat with Jimmy before the amazed eyes of Harry.

He forgot that she had not promised never to accost that despised individual again and her action seemed a direct flouting in the face of the whole store.

Sara was impartial in her greetings; she spoke pleasantly to Harry as she passed and received in return a stare the hostility of which there was no mistaking.

Harry had given Sara the cut direct, and to this he added a further insult when he ignored her repeated questions by persistent silence. The girl's face went red as she advanced to his counter:

"Say something; what do you mean by giving me the air?"

"I'll tell you what I mean, Sara Juke. Didn't I tell you to never to speak to that feller again—I won't stand for it, I tell you."

"Don't you pull any of that bossy stuff with me, Harry Smith —or you and me'll part company."

"Oh, that's the way you feel, is it—well, let me tell you we will part company if you're goin' to try any of that."

"That's enough, Harry Smith—you don't have to wait no longer —I'm through, I tell you, through —I'm goin' to do a little of that never stuff—don't you never speak to me again—get that?"

"I get you," said Harry, sorry now, but unable to apologize.

"You mean you—we're—it's all off."

"That's what I mean."

"Well, of all the nerve." She left him trying to look unconcerned, but in her heart she was sorry. They had had spats before and somehow they had made up and been all the better friends afterward.

What has happened once would happen again; Sara had no idea that Harry meant what he said; she was sure she didn't; so she waited after the store closed for Harry to walk to the subway with her, as usual.

But no Harry appeared; Angie hailed her: "You waiting for some one?"

"Yes; I'm waiting for Harry."

"Come along with me."

"No, I'll wait."

Harry punched the clock and opened the door; he saw Sara and wavered, but only for a second, then he walked on. "Harry!" she called. He turned, glanced at her and resumed his walk.

The girl could scarcely believe it; indignant, then furious, she stood breathing; glad that no one had witnessed her humiliation when Jimmy Fitzgibbons appeared and slipped his arm through hers.

"Hello, Doll; you waiting for me?"

"Why not?" replied Sara determined now to go any length to show Harry he could not treat her so cavalierly and get away with it.

"Atta girl—come along and we'll try a taxi—that's the kind of a bird I am—tell me where to go and you go in a taxi."

They proceeded arm in arm to the corner and from a distance ahead Mr. Smith, looking back with twinges of conscience for his unseemly behavior, beheld Sara being handed into the vehicle by Jimmy; saw them drive off and felt sick all over.

The driver looked back for instructions. "Oh, drop us at the classiest of chop suey joints on Broadway," said the elegant Mr. Fitzgibbons, who was resolved to spare no expense to show this girl that he was the real thing.

Sara, who had taken only a few dinners outside her boarding house and those in cheap restaurants, allowed Jimmy to escort her to a second-floor cafe where Oriental decorations and soft slippered Chinamen were supposed to give a touch of the Far East.

It was new and strange and her evident awe was duly appreciated by her host. "We ain't going to eat in the main room, Kid," he said, "you see them little places along the wall—that's us," and he half pushed her into one of the small semi-partitioned alcoves with just room enough for two.

Sara's excursions with Harry had lacked the excitement attendant on this expedition. The newness of the surroundings, the air with which Jimmy ordered the meal all appealed to her; her face reflected her enjoyment and her eyes sparkled as she bantered Jimmy.

"You know just how to do things, Jimmy."

"That's me, Doll; you only live once and you might as well have a good time while you last—that's me."

Fingered Chop Sticks

The waiter placed the chop suey before them in the regulation little bowls and Jimmy with the air of a man of the world picked up his chop suey sticks and began to eat.

Nor was his enjoyment of the rice and chicken made less by the air of profound amazement on the face of his companion who fingered the chop sticks with the same uncertainty that a tyro would handle a violin bow.

"It ain't hard, Kid—watch me —atta Girl—say, you're doin' fine. Travel around with me and I'll show you a bit of life."

Sara's efforts to eat a la Chinese were not so successful as Jimmy tried to make her believe, but she did fairly well for a novice, she drank her tea with relish and ended into the bottom of the cup with interest.

"What do you see there?" asked Jimmy.

"It ain't nothin'—them leaves—you know what they say—I'm loved by a dark man, ain't that a scream?"

Jimmy rose and walked over to sit beside her. "I don't see no scream about it," he said, slipping an arm about her waist.

"Who's the dark man?" asked the girl, making no move to resent this familiarity.

"Look around, Kid—I'm the one —say, you must a been blind if you ain't seen I been crazy about you—honest to goodness, Doll, I meant what I said when I told you I couldn't sleep nights thinkin' about you—why, I'd go through fire for you, Kid, that's the kind of a guy I am."

Jimmy's declaration bore the tone and the earmarks of sincerity. No girl resents being told that a man is madly in love with her, and Sara was no different from the rest of her sisters.

"I never knew you loved me so much, honest I didn't," she said, her face flushed.

Jimmy had had plenty of practice in making love; he had cajoled many a girl after repeating the self-same words he had just used. He drew the girl toward him and, pulling her head toward him, kissed her full on the lips.

Sara's struggle to escape was half-hearted, and when she did free herself Jimmy repeated the caress.

"There," he cried, "that means you're mine."

The girl buried her face against the lapel of his coat and was spared the expression of his face, which would have sent her hastily out of the place with shame in her heart.

Jimmy went on talking—the old familiar stuff, often tried and never found wanting. There was only one conclusion for Sara to draw and that was that Jimmy was eager to marry her. Her mind reverted to Harry.

"I'm afraid it'll kill Harry when you and me gets married," she said.

Jimmy roared. "You wants put the soft pedal on that marryin' stuff—wait 'till I make my plea, Kid."

"Well, we're engaged, ain't we, Jimmy?"

A Powerful Picture, With an All-Star Cast, Soon to Be Shown at Leading Theatres.

"I suppose so—but don't be spreadin' the good news; it ain't healthy for everybody to know your business, an' besides I wouldn't look good down in the store."

Her look of disappointment made him add hastily: "You know I love you, honey, and that's all that counts."

"But you gotta tell Harry that you and me is keepin' company."

"I gotta tell him! What's the matter with you tellin' him?"

Sara shook her head. "I ain't got the heart, Jimmy—I can't do it."

"Why not? He won't hurt you?"

"It ain't that Jimmy—but he's sick."

A Weak Sister

Jim threw back his head and laughed: "Him sick? Nothin' doin' he's kiddin' you, Doll—he's a weak sister, that's what he is."

"No, you're wrong, Jimmy; only this week I went to the clinic with him."

"Don't you bother your head about him Doll—you got me now."

"It's his lungs, Jimmy—they're sick—you noticed he coughs a lot —well, the doc says——"

She stopped abruptly at the look on her companion's face.

"Why, what's the matter, Jimmy?"

"You mean he's got the T B"—he stammered.

"Maybe it's that," she went on, laying a hand on his arm, "an' if he gets excited he might get a hemorrhage so the doc says, and you see why I can't tell him."

Jimmy hardly knew what he was using his handkerchief vigorously wiping his lips.

His action was not lost on the girl, who began dimly to understand.

IF SUN BRIGHTENED

By GARRETT P. SERVISS

Eminent Astronomer and Authority on Subjects of Scientific Interest.

THE sudden remarkable brightening of the star Beta Ceti has set people guessing about what would happen to the earth and its inhabitants if a similar accident should occur to the sun, which is a star belonging to nearly the same type as Beta Ceti.

In rising from the second to the first magnitude, Beta Ceti increased nearly two and a half times in brightness, and we may say the increase of the heat radiated by that suddenly enlarged sun upon any planets that may revolve around was in the same ratio.

Let the same thing happen to the sun and the consequences to the earth would be terrible. The doubling of the quantity of heat poured by the sun upon the earth would mean much more than just doubling the temperature shown by the thermometer. In its present condition the sun supplies enough heat to the earth to raise the mean temperature of the earth's surface above freezing, which is 32 degrees above absolute zero, or 28 degrees above the freezing point. But let the heat be doubled and the mean temperature at the earth's surface would become 1028 degrees above absolute zero, or 1019 degrees above freezing!

Is there any reason to suppose that such a disaster could ever happen to the sun and the earth? Yes, there is reason to suppose it possible, although the chance of its actually occurring within any assignable time is negligibly small.

Any one searching for signs of possible trouble might try what he could make out of the fact that Beta Ceti is, as regards type, of a stellar type similar to that of the sun. They are both "G" stars, i. e., they both belong to the class of stars whose spectrum, as Campbell has said, "seems to indicate the summit of stellar life." From that summit of the years of a star there begins a decline, leading downward first to the yellow stars of class "K," and so on toward the dying red stars.

It may be thought significant in connection with the recent outburst that Beta Ceti, which is a larger sun than ours, is somewhat further advanced in its class. Does that mean that too sun is advancing toward a state when it will be more liable than now to a crisis of trouble? We do not know. There is not enough statistical evidence to furnish an answer. Our lifespan is so short that our observations of these events in the heavens are like those that an ephemerid, living only through one morning's hours, might make upon the changes of a Summer.

The cause of such outbreaks as that of Beta Ceti is not certainly known.

A RHYMING OPTIMIST

—By Aline Michaelis—

EVERY ONE has seen the chappie who is always in a stew, who is awfully unhappy when there's not a lot to do. He's the man who keeps repeating lists of tasks he has on hand and who scarce has time for eating, while he tells to beat the band. Oh, he hasn't any system and he never made a plan; but for jobs he can't resist 'em, so he tackles all he can. But, alas, he goes about it in a weak, haphazard way; he's a bungler, never doubt it, but he thinks he is O. K. So, no matter what is brewing, you will always find him there, and in everything that's doing, he is eager for a share. And he potters and he putters while he fritters time away, till folks chuckle when he mutters: "Every day's my busy day." He's too busy to be steady, he's too busy to be sure; though an eager chap, and ready, he's a hopeless amateur. In a circle he keeps going, not a moment can he spare, and he has no way of knowing he's not getting anywhere. Like the whirling dervish spinning, he is busy as a top; but the place of his beginning is the place where he will stop. Though he deal in art or lumber, when he pulls the "busy" sign, everybody gets his number, everybody knows his line.

TELL IT AT DINNER

"I think it is a foolish fashion that so many women indulge in, that of telling their age wrongly," said the woman with prematurely gray hair. "I can honestly say that I never practice it myself."

"No?" said her friend, with much meaning in the monosyllable. "Well," said the first speaker with a smile—she was a woman with a sense of humor—"the fact is, I don't have to. I have a way of making myself out younger than I am, if I wish to, without telling a fib at all."

"Really?" inquired the other curiously. "In what way?"

"I put the burden of the fib upon the questioner. You see, when one of my dear friends—it is always women who are curious on this point—asks me how old I am, I say: 'Oh, I'm a year or two older than you, you know, my dear—at least a year older. Let me see now, how old are you?' And then she always knocks more off my age than I should ever have the courage to do myself."

GOOD NIGHT STORIES

BE SURE TO READ THEM TO CHILDREN

By Blanche Silver

David Meats an Odd Little Family of Hamsters.

WELL, of all things!" David exclaimed, as he stepped up beside the big cage. "What funny little mice—or rats!"

"What a funny little girl you are!" answered the little bear behind the iron bars. "If I'm a mouse or a rat, then you're a little girl!"

David laughed and looked at the little fellow from every direction. He did somewhat resemble a rat. Yet he was very much better looking. He was about ten inches long with bright black eyes, short ears and a hairy tail almost three inches long.

"We're even now."

His fur was quite thick and very shiny, and of a yellowish brown shade on the tips. On each cheek he wore a big yellow spot, and around his neck was a reddish band. The lower part of his body was black, but his tiny feet were white.

"I guess it must be our shape that resembles the rats," he said. "But we hamsters never take offence. So you're forgiven for your mistake. I know you are a little boy. I guess we're even now. Haven't you ever seen a hamster before?"

"No, I can't say that I have," replied David politely. "Where did you live before you came to the zoo here?"

"In Europe," answered the little fellow. "They caught me and put in here. Then one day they caught my wife, and here we have lived with our family ever since."

"And you like it here?" questioned David, as a little head poked out the doorway of their burrow.

"I'll say we like it," laughed the second little hamster, whom Mr. Hamster introduced as his wife. "I wouldn't go back into our old haunts for anything."

"You see, Mother Hampeter and I lived in the cornfield," squeaked Mr. Hampeter. "And there we were always in danger. You see, we hampsters do destroy a great deal of crops—not that we live on grain alone. But our houses or burrows cover so much ground that they can't raise anything above them. Why, we could make short work of a garden when a few of us go marketing. We love peas, beans and roots of all kinds —and fruits, too. Well, the folks who live near us despise us and set the traps to catch us, and set their dogs on us. Our lives were always in danger."

"Thank goodness! We don't have to go through that now," chuckled Mrs. Hampeter. "Here we get all we need to eat and more. We're thought a great deal of, and folks stop to speak every time they pass, just like you did. Only it isn't everyone that can understand and talk to us like you have. But, Daddy Hamster, you had better come down and see what's the trouble with the baby."

And away she darted into her burrow. Mr. Hamster winked at David and followered her. David turned, and, smiling to himself, walked on to the next cage.

GOOD LOOKS AND DIET

—By Brice Belden, M. D.—

IF the teeth deteriorate absorption of the jaw bone takes place. The loss of bone causes the face to sink in, with resulting looseness of the skin.

It is, therefore, obvious that good looks depend on what they depend upon the maintenance of good teeth, call for a diet rich in lime, which the teeth require for their nourishment. Eggs, cheese, milk, fruits and vegetables are the foods richest in lime.

Phosphorus is another chemical substance which the teeth require for proper growth, and it may also be obtained from such foods as eggs and cheese.

Potash has been shown to be a very important element in our food. Animals kept upon a diet poor in potash suffer from changes in the nerves and muscles; the skin is also damaged and the animals lost their fur; they also grew old prematurely. The fur grew again normally when a diet rich in potash was resumed. The animals, when put on their potash-poor dietary, became decidedly obese, but when a diet rich in potash was substituted they lost their excessive fat.

ETIQUETTE POINTERS

DEAR MISS ADAMS:

I recently met a girl at a dance. She sent me an invitation to her graduation party, which I have accepted. Is it proper for me to give her a gift, and, if so, of what nature?

THE only gift that would be good form for you to send is flowers.

A particularly effective flower gift this year is a tiny quaint bouquet copied from the bouquet of our great grandmothers. These are made of buds and several kinds of flowers, massed tightly together and bordered by a white lace paper. The colors of the flowers are combined so that they are appropriate for any dress. They are very popular with the girl graduates, for they are so easy to carry or to wear. Almost all florists now have a small bouquet of this kind for display.

By Vicente Blasco Ibanez.

KNOCKED off from a blow from her slender hands, the Princess' hat rolled down the steps And she, realizing that its position was indeed ridiculous released her, and together they quietly retraced their steps toward the open shutter.

Without protest Alicia allowed Michael to put his arm in hers, leaving up to him the expressed such deep humility He seemed repentent for the liberties he had taken, and asked her forgiveness with a sale smile; her emotion was such that she made not the slightest movement when his arm freed itself from hers and encircled her waist.

Thus they walked along, closely linked, forming a single body, taking step after step mechanically, without looking where they were going. He with his eyes fixed on hers, watching her face closely hoping for a glance, and a monosyllable that would mean her acceptance. But Alicia was afraid of meeting those imploring eyes, and turned her own way.

"Tell me 'yes,' my beloved," murmured. "It isn't for nothing that we have met; it is not for nothing that you must be sought me out. We shall rebuild our lives that have been so nearly wrecked by our vanity and pride. Let us be, although it be for a day, what we may be to one another."

"No," sighed Alicia, "I can't."

"Yes; perhaps—later; but not now. . . . When my mind is at rest, when I shall recover from the worry that is killing me. But I love you; is that enough? I love you."

These three words sufficed the Prince. He who had gone to the farthest extreme of domination with so many women without ever feeling satisfied, contented himself with those brief words, which sounded in his ears like happy music.

There was a kiss, a long kiss, without either or them pausing in their walk. Alicia offered no resistance, and shortly afterwards her lips, animated by a feverish awakening, responded to his kiss, making it more passionate, more vibrant and endless. She no longer felt any fear.

Syrup Pepsin Loved By Hosts of Babies

Half a teaspoonful will make a fretful youngster happy and playful

THE mother has her choice of many remedies for her baby's minor ills, but she also knows full which remedy she selects last she do the child harm. What might be safe for herself may do injury to an infant. You will find that if the little one cries and doesn't want to play that its bowels are constipated. First look carefully to the diet and give the child one-half teaspoonful of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. You will then see results in a few hours. You will not have to force it on babies or children: they actually ask for it, it is so pleasant-tasting and free from griping.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a compound of Egyptian senna and pepsin with agreeable aromatics. The ingredients are stated on the package. It is a mild, gentle vegetable laxative that everyone finds effective and pleasant. It is better for you and yours than purgatives, coal-tar drugs, or salt waters and powders, which may concentrate the blood and dry up the skin; or mercurial calomel, which may salivate and loosen the teeth.

Use a safe laxative like Syrup Pepsin, and especially for the children, for invalids, growing girls, nursing mothers, elderly people, and persons recently operated upon who need bowel action with the least strain. Mrs. Lillian Brenington of Woodruff, S. C., always gives her children Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and Mrs. A. E. Blondin of Muskegon, Mich., will not have any other laxative in her home. Your druggist will supply you, and it only costs a cent a dose. Try it in constipation, colic, biliousness, flatulency, headaches, and to break up fevers and colds.

ANY FAMILY MAY TRY IT FREE

Thousands of parents are acting themselves. "Where can I find a trustworthy laxative that anyone in the family can use when constipated?" is very true, for Syrup Pepsin. I will gladly provide a liberal free sample bottle, sufficient for an extended test. Write me today to mail it, Address: W. B. Caldwell, 1412 Washington St., Monticello, Illinois. Do it now!

FORBES' VIEWS ON FINANCE

—By B. C. Forbes—

You probably smiled if you read the testimony of Nicholas F. Brady that, although he was a director of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company, he had no idea that the company was headed toward disaster, and therefore didn't sell out early enough the large block of B. R. T. stock owned by the Brady estate, of which he was a trustee.

True, he had gumption enough to sell his own personal holdings quite some time before he finally threw over the then almost worthless shares held by his father's estate.

But even so, there was nothing really unbelievable about Brady's proclaimed blindness regarding B. R. T.'s prospects. I say this notwithstanding that I have no regard whatsoever for either the past or present generation of the Brady family and the way the Brady fortune was acquired.

* * *

Very often the worst judges of a company's prospects are its own executives and its most active directors.

There are so near the enterprises that they cannot see it in the proper perspective.

* * *

I have no doubt, for example, that Allan Ryan sincerely believed his Stutz Motor Company and its stock were worth a great deal at the time he set out to punish speculators who sold the Stutz shares short.

* * *

I know an extremely capable railroad president who was putting practically all his savings into the common stock of his road when the price was around par. Soon he was mortified when he saw the stock sink and sink and sink until it went below $40 a share. Incidentally, he is still holding on to the stock and has every confidence that it will yet climb back to at least towards par.

* * *

George A. Gaston had such faith in Gaston, Williams & Wigmore that he held on to it right through thick and thin, and even kept on buying more as the company drifted nearer and nearer receivership. He had faith that he could pull his company through and didn't lose his faith until a receivership was forced upon him.

The picture has another side.

It was common gossip in Wall Street during the early years of the stock market war boom that Bethlehem Steel insiders regarded the phenomenal skyrocketing of the company's shares as entirely unjustified and that they were free sellers of the shares, only to become convinced later that their judgment had been wrong that they reentered the market as buyers on quite a scale.

* * *

Oftener than once E. T. Bedford, president of the Cotton Products Refining Company, assured me that the common was practically worthless and that he couldn't understand why people persisted in buying it in the stock market. I well remember that I had at one time 500 shares of this stock and that I was glad to sell it out at a modest profit at Mr. Bedford threw such cold water on it. I paid just upwards of $10 a share for it. Since then the stock has sold close to $140 a share. It was long since figured of dabbling in speculative stocks.

* * *

In the great majority of cases, however, executives and directors of a company are obsessed with the value of its properties and its prospects. Often they cannot understand why other people are so blind to the wonderful merits of their concern. They have cashed which they have built in the air for their enterprises, and they are dumfounded because others can't see the gigantic things that are to be achieved by and by.

* * *

Sad? Not a bit of it. It is well that this is so. It is this irrepressible faith and optimism and enthusiasm which have made America what it is today. Think not only of the imagination, but also the courage which moved the inspired James J. Hill to span the vast, unpopulated Northwest with a transcontinental railroad. Think, too, of the vision and the fortitude exercised in the earlier stages by Carnegie, Rockefeller, Vail, Coffin, Schwab, Wright, Harriman, Eastman, Singer, Goodyear, Vanderbilt, Durant, Morse, Swift, Armour, Flagler, Willys, Hearst, Pope, Westinghouse, Dollar, Huntington, to say nothing of heads of others who dared much and lost.

* * *

Yes, the nation owes much of its progress and prosperity to men who were blind to the possibilities of failure and saw nothing but their goal and concentrated wholly upon finding their way toward it, overcoming any and all obstacles.

Oils Advance to 1923 Highs in New York Market That Has Strong Tone

DEMAND IS GOOD FOR COPPERS AND MOTORS

A renewal of the recent buying by domestic oils sent Producers & Refiners, Phillips Petroleum and Mariand to new high records for the year, the last named gaining 1¾.

A good demand also was noted for the motors, coppers, equipments and motor accessories. Corn Products continued reactionary.

ADDITIONAL HIGHS.

Additional new high records were made by National Lead, up 2¾; Gulf States Steel, up 1; and White Motors and Electric Storage Battery, up fractionally.

Trading in rails was relatively quiet, but Chicago Northwestern common, Pacific, Delaware & Hudson and Wabash preferred all sold at higher prices.

TRADE FAILURES.

Foreign exchanges opened irregular, demand sterling dropping ½ of a cent to $4.69⅝ and French francs advancing 7 points to 6.54 cents.

The dealing volume of business failures is a reflection of the sound credit conditions that have been so consistently maintained in the banking figures, especially of the reserve system. The speculative excesses that prove so ruinous to the smaller companies are yet to be discovered.

At the moment some slight firmness in call money rates has developed, representing, however, only the effect of the back wash of the March 15 governmental financing. For all the understone of the general money market, few bankers look for disturbing flurries for months to come.

COPPER MINES IN QUEST OF MEN

Houghton, Mich., March 20.—Lake copper district companies are advertising for men in newspapers of Northwest, calling attention to the miner's wage of $4.50, an 8-hour shift and many modern houses for married men at the rate of $5 to $7 per month; steady work; advance fare and free fare if employee works a while. There is considerable speculation as to the effect of the increase to $4.50 per day for miners, which is expected to result in a lot of some of the industrial centres where rents are high and other living costs in excess of what they are in the Lake district. It is believed it will attract former miners back to this region.

Vienna Hospitals Closed

Vienna, March 20.—The Vienna hospitals were forced to close yesterday when the non-medical personnel at each institution walked out in protest against the replacement of nuns at the hospital for government employes. It was necessary for all persons except patients and nurses on duty to get their meals outside. Employment of the nuns was decided upon as a measure of economy.

Novel Grid Leak

A novel grid leak that should increase the strength of your signals. An ordinary crystal detector (D) is connected from the grid to the filament lead as shown in the diagram, in place of the usual grid leak. If the crystal does not work in one position, reverse the leads. The usual grid condenser should be left in place (C). This is a trick worth trying some time. Contributed by Geo e '. Weston of High street, West Medford.

BLOODHOUND AIDS SEARCH FOR MINER

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., March 20.—A bloodhound is being used in the search a mine worker lost since Saturday nights in the underground recesses of the Stanton mines in this city. After fifty fellow miners had failed in their search for the missing man, James Kowalski, company officials called upon State troopers, who brought the dog to aid them in the hunt. Dog and troopers searched yesterday without result.

ANSWERS FOR FOLLOWERS OF RADIO

Several contributors to the "Radio Dot" column have asked for the identification of mysterious "Hellos" and "1, 2, 3, 4s," etc. This is the usual method of testing out a station, and s one to universal use. It is, therefore, impossible to know what station t is.

G. A. K., Jr.—In answer to F. E. G., of Dorchester, I wish to state hat station WLAG has a woman announcer, and I heard them myself the night of March 16 about 12:15, and held on to them until I got tired of hearing the woman announcer giving the call letters, so there can be no mistake.

A. R. J. P., Cambridge.—Last evening (March 15) on a three-slide tuner and crystal, we heard part of a distant program, and, in line with your valuable suggestion, are sending it in in hopes that the station may be identified. We thought we heard WGY. The time was about 11:30. There was something on the one-hundredth anniversary of the founding (?) of the constitution of the——— [illegible] Hampshire, N. Y. People were asked to stand and sing American, when was done.

If you want to identify a station whose call letters you missed, drop a line to the Radio Editor, and your request will be published in the late-out column.

FILENE OPENS NEW BASEMENT SECTION

A new section of Filene's automatic bargain basement, opened today in the basement of the building at No. 81 Hawley street, next to the present Filene store. The new acquisition, 9,000 square feet of added space, will be used for the selling of shoes for all the family. It is connected with the main Filene bargain basement with an entrance from the balcony boys' clothing section and the main bargain street entrance and has has a separate entrance from Hawley street. This Filene addition is the third in three years. The first was the Filene automatic bargain annex at 398 Washington street, opened in January, 1920. Then came the Franklin street annex, three months later. Now the Filene automatic bargain basement takes over the third addition. Every rule of the Filene automatic bargain basement will govern sales in the added section.

"A Protestant Country"?

Thomas Jefferson Denied It

Copyright, 1923, Star Company

Two men, candidates for the bench, are told by Governor Parker of Louisiana that they won't be appointed because they belong to the Ku Klux Klan. The two men both hold office now; one is district attorney, the other is district judge.

Last Sunday forty Ku Klux gentlemen in full regalia attended a little church. The pastor said he welcomed them because, ordinarily, he had to DRAG people to church, and it was a pleasure to see men coming of their own accord.

One Ku Klux made a short speech, saying, "This is a Protestant country and we intend to KEEP it so."

That wasn't the opinion of Thomas Jefferson, who wrote the Declaration of Independence and was not much of a religious believer. The Sultan of Morocco declined to make treaties with the United States because he didn't want to treat with a Christian nation. Jefferson told the Sultan he needn't let our Christianity worry him, for the United States was a republic, everybody could have any religion he chose, and the State itself had no religion and recognized none, officially. So far as the general public knows, that situation hasn't changed.

In fact, Thomas Jefferson's message to the old Sultan was used very recently in an official communication to a little Sultan over in the direction of the Philippines.

Great Britain's Twilight

Ignored in Europe. France Is Boss

Copyright, 1923, Star Company

Lloyd George tells Great Britain that the British Empire has number six low as a power in Europe.

He says that questions vitally affecting the welfare of the British Empire are settled by other European nations, without even consulting England, and that after England lost one million lives and fifty thousand million dollars in the late war.

The fact is that France is now the dominating power in Europe and England may soon find her European problem what it was in the days of Pitt, keeping France out of England.

The French have learned one thing, preparedness is power, power means control, and she means to keep prepared and keep control. England and the United States put her on top, and her motto is the old one, "J'y suis, j'y reste." "Here I am, here I stay."

Drive Against Savings Bank Life Insurance

It has come to us that there is a drive on against Savings Bank Life Insurance. The report is that Mr. Homer Loring, who did such splendid work in behalf of the public on the Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway Company as chairman of the board of trustees, is to be used as the cat's paw and the goat.

Under the guise of economy and consolidation, they propose gradually to destroy the Savings Bank Life Insurance development by attrition.

This is the old scheme. When a public body becomes efficient because certain of its members are brave and intelligent, "the interests," adversely affected by the public-spirited membership of this board, immediately begin by crooked ways and means a campaign either to abolish the board, to reduce it or to consolidate it with some other boards, all for the purpose of getting rid of the objectionable members. This practice is what has reduced the regulation of the Public Utilities in this State to such a farce.

When they cannot get rid of an objectionable member by promoting him into some other more personally desirable place, but less offensive to the interests, they abolish or reorganize the board. Thus they got rid of Perley Hall on the old Railroad Board. Thus they removed George W. Anderson on the Railroad Commission. Thus they removed General Schaff and Solomon Lewenberg from the Gas Commission, and thus they got rid of Alonzo Weed from the Public Utilities Board. Thus they got rid of Francis X. Tyrrell of the Board of Economy and Efficiency.

It is an old, old gag. It is plain that they are beginning to aim at Miss Alice H. Grady, the able and enthusiastic Commissioner of Savings Bank Life Insurance, under whose energetic and intelligent administration the Savings Bank Life Insurance has increased to about $22,000,000.

We know that Mr. Loring is a public spirited citizen. We know he is intelligent and we do not believe he is subject either to flattery or cajolery. Therefore, we do not believe that he will sit into this little game to raise the cost of life insurance to the people of Massachusetts.

Chamber to Aid Veterans

At last the Boston Chamber of Commerce has found something to do that will meet with the praise and commendation of all classes of citizens. We refer to its "job-finding campaign," just launched by a group of "100 minutemen."

The purpose is to find suitable employment for disabled veterans who are trained by the United States Veterans' Bureau; to stimulate interest among employers in the future of men who were gassed, wounded or otherwise shattered while serving their country in the World War.

Special training for special jobs is being given by the government. The hard part of it is to find the right jobs after the training has been completed. The Chamber proposes to step into the breach and co-operate. This decision is based upon patriotism and economic wisdom.

Therefore, the Boston American is glad to commend the Chamber of Commerce.

RATS HELD IN ESTEEM IN INDIA

"RATS!" in India this isn't an expletive of disgust or derision. Nor are the animals, themselves despised or looked upon as a menace.

On the contrary, they are held in high esteem, and occupy a place of religious respect among the Hindus.

This strange adoration of the creatures we consider repulsive and know are the most undesirable members of the rodent family is a result of the worship of a deity whose history dates so far back that students have been unable to find out just when or why the rat is associated with him.

This god's name is Ganesha. According to Hindu mythology he was the lord of the Ganas, who were a group of inferior deities.

Would Let Dogs Run

Editor Boston American:

I had an English setter, a thoroughbred, who was about four months old. He was very well taken care of, was a family pet, and was as healthy as a dog could possibly be, until——. He didn't come home one night, so the next morning we called the police station. They said that an animal answering the description had been picked up by the dog catcher the day before. They asked us if we had him licensed. We had been under the impression that he didn't have to be licensed until he was a year old, so hadn't done anything about it. My brother went to the station house, got a license and went after the dog. When we got him home he had distemper, and after going through the most awful agony the dog died. Wouldn't it have been a lot better to have let the dog run around the streets and be healthy, than to have them pick him up and put him where he got sick?

MILDRED J. SHEA.

Should She Quit Job?

Editor Boston American:

I am a young girl working in a postal station. I meet every kind of a person." There are nice people who always get here before closing time, and then there are others who always come in at the last minute, and when I tell them they are too late, they turn on me as if it were my fault. What I can't understand is, the people that come in so late are not working people, but people who could come much earlier if they just stopped to think of the girl that has to go home after a long day. Should you advise me to find another position, as I don't want people to hold a grudge against me for not "helping them out," as they say? You know that when Uncle Sam makes rules they have to be obeyed, regardless of the public.

ANNE.

Needs School Dresses

Editor Helping Hand:

I would like some dresses for a girl fifteen who is trying to attend high school. The father deserted the family, and the mother has only ten dollars a week and pays eighteen dollars a month rent, so you see they cannot afford to buy clothes. There is a boy, fourteen, who is at school, who would appreciate a mackinaw or other clothes.

MRS. M. M.

No Work All Winter

Editor Helping Hand:

A few years ago, when my husband was working, we adopted a poor little boy who had no place to go. Now it is we who need help. My husband has not worked all Winter, and we are badly in need of clothes. Anything for a boy of ten or for a woman, size 44, will be very greatly appreciated.

MRS. M. H.

Asks for Boy's Clothes

Editor Helping Hand:

I am a widow with two boys, eight and four, to support. Anything in the line of clothing, but particularly the following, would be appreciated: Eight-year-old overcoat, necktie, shoes (size 1 or 13), stockings (size 1 shoe or eight-year size). Four-year-old, suit.

All Need Clothes

Editor Helping Hand:

May I hope to be helped by one of the kind readers? I am the mother of two little girls, nearly three and four years old. We all are in need of clothes. The children need underwear badly and also shoes and stockings. I have made over everything for the little ones until there was nothing left. Loss of money in business, no work, and at last sickness, has brought us to this. My husband has work now, but there is so much to be paid on debts that we cannot scrape enough together for clothes. I wear size 38, and 6 to 6½ shoes.

I have a pair of "Educator" two-strap pumps for "Mary," with some good stockings and at least two dresses, a sweater or two (light weight) for "Dot," and plenty of pieces of flannel and the like for "L. H. M." Will no doubt have more when I can look them up. Have a "Dot" of my own who persists in outgrowing everything.

AUSTRIA REGIRDS HER LOINS FOR A COMEBACK

By Herbert Kaufman

AUSTRIA is out of the hospital—a mangled wreck of the double-headed eagle whose widespread wings once covered the richest spaces of the continent.

Now one wing is gone and the other crippled. Hungary is a separate entity, Bohemia once more rich and independent. Serb, Czech, Slovene and Pole have in turn plucked her and stuck the feathers in their caps.

Versailles surgery drained her veins, assorted the myriad blood elements and transfused them to new-born republics.

All that's left is empty-pocket Vienna with a hand span of outlying territory to furnish food and provender industry.

But in Vienna are the brains of all that region—its skill is there and concentrated centuries of trade cunning.

Nations return to power via great cities. If you would quickly destroy England, first wipe London from the map.

Wherever management is centred, there wealth will inevitably drift and commerce promptly focus.

For hundreds of years Vienna was promoter, sales agent and banker for the Levant. Watch her recover supremacy there. War stripped her pockets, but reparations could not confiscate community intelligence. And that's beginning to assert itself. Watch and you'll see a pauper play merchant prince again.

The drone is back at work; exchange slowly dehydrating.

Austrian bonds are prime investments.

Common sense and determination are at the helm of affairs. Militarism and revenge, proscribed exiles.

The weeping willow of yesterday has changed to a willing worker. Houses are going up and inequality passing out.

That's the Way to Rebuild

A "women and children first" program gives priority of homes to families. A billion drones devoted to real habilitation—the stimulation of hope and confidence—has already achieved miracles.

Sixty thousand aged persons are enabled through treasury aid to live with their people. Little ones have been taken from charitable institutions and returned to the care of their parents.

Infectious outbreaks attacked at the source; the sanitary regulations of slaughterhouses instituted—the lid literally clapped down on disease by the installation of closed street sweepings' carts, boys and girls rescued from fetid, unhealthy environments and sent to playgrounds, great public baths are being opened everywhere and abandoned cemeteries made into parks.

That's the way to rebuild. Start with the common folk and put them on their feet, and any phoenix will rise from its ashes.

Uncle Sam, Multi-Billionaire and Piker

The United States is paying attention to some of its neglected folk, too. Federal employes caught between the salary standards of one generation and the living costs of another will shortly go on a new wage basis.

The indefensible spectacle of veteran public servants living in lean-tos and shacks has awakened congressional conscience. Reclassification is under way. Clerks and laborers, irrespective of department or sex, will receive the same pay for the same work and as much as private concerns give for equivalent service.

Merit, not seniority, will hereafter determine promotion.

Fundamental efficiency at last reaches the Capitol, but it doesn't reach beyond chiefs of divisions. And that isn't far enough.

A multi-billion-dollar corporation should have first choice of one hundred and twenty million minds. Why should any outside concern be able to outbid the common interest for big ideas and the competence to execute them?

Van H. Manning, for twenty years director of the Bureau of Mines and the best posted man in America in his field, is on the staff of the Petroleum Institute of America. He's getting more than six thousand dollars now. No wonder oil and steel are always in a superdividend condition.

Neither taxes nor some corporation profits will be so high when a share of them are spent to keep the right man in his place.

Captain Reece of the Mantelpiece

Secretary Denby proposes to transfer paymasters and civil engineers to the line. Which is the technical way of saying that naval officers, untrained for the job, will have the authority to command battleships. Hark to the bark of the sea dogs.

Katherine Smith, director of the United States Employment Service, advises high school pupils to learn trades and suggests that high schools should train them. She finds no demand for folk who have nothing that the world can specifically use, but constant openings for anybody qualified for particular tasks. The tool is mightier than the rules nowadays.

Note the difference between union scales and bookkeepers' incomes.

Students of Newcomb College at New Orleans also seem to feel that the curriculum makers are not all that they're cracked up to be. The faculty devised an intelligence test. After reading it, the pupils submitted one of their own. Here are a few sample answers from the learned professors: "Boob McNutt is a widely known food preparation; Grover Cleveland Bergdoll, a World War hero; young women put brilliantine in their eyes to make them shine, and Filet Mignon is an opera by Puccini."

News to Make Us Catch Our Breath

A German invents a gas pistol for use against thieves and criminals, but hasn't yet devised a method to keep them from using it.

English factories start production on flying bicycles. Imagine the next war with millions of soldiers in the air. France won't be so cocky when a swarm of human locusts is ready on the other side of the Channel. Our aviation corp hasn't even got its pinfeathers.

Scotland Yard equips automobiles with wireless. Human bloodhounds now have a voice with which to bay the pack.

Congressman Madden says it will cost ten million dollars to remodel Nitrate Plant No. 2 at Muscle Shoals. Designed by experts who themselves pronounce it obsolete at completion. Bungle, bungle, bungle. "What was I ever begun for If I was so soon to be done for." Mr. Ford's offer begins to look better.

Thomas Midgley, a distinguished engineer and Nichol medal winner, finds a philosopher's stone and makes one gallon of gasoline go as far as two. Mere pinch of his secret compound doubles mileage. The only fly in the car owner's ointment is the fact that the formula's useless until existing engines and carburetors are replaced.

Paraphrasing the remark of the old negro, when informed he would have to die to collect life insurance, "We might have known that there was a catch in it."

News that more or less makes us catch our breath. But here's something that catches the heart.
